Poles Occupy Teschen—Girls of Sudetenland Greet Nazi Soldiers

Polish soldiers are greeted by inhabitants as their military takes possession of the city of Teschen, acquired from Czechoslovakia after German troops started occupation of Sudeten areas. The Poles are short on motorized equipment, long on cavalry, made an unimpressive entrance into the town.

Girls of Friedland, Sudetenland, gathered in the market square to greet German soldiers, members of the army of occupation which moved into the town. Some of them carried bunches of flowers. The troopers and officials were pelted with the roses until someone hit Chancellor Hitler in the face, causing an order to be sent out to confiscate all bouquets along his line of march.

THOUSANDS ON PATROL DUTY IN BLAZE AREA

HUNDREDS EVACUATED

Residents in Danger Zones in Minnesota and Ontario Brought to Safety.

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

Constable David Hamilton of the Ontario provincial police said today indications were that two more families, comprising about ten persons, perished in Monday's devastating fires that swept the Minnesota-Canadian border country with 17 dead previously listed.

(By Associated Press)

Airplanes, national guard trucks and thousands of men patroled the fire-ravaged Canadian border district between northern Minnesota and Ontario today on the 20th anniversary of a forest fire that took hundreds of lives.

Although scattered showers and lower temperatures had greatly improved conditions, authorities said, grimy, weary fire fighters were watching blazes from Warroad, Minn., eastward on both sides of the border to prevent new outbreaks of the fires that already claimed 17 lives.

30 Persons Missing.

About 30 persons, including one whole family, were missing in the Dance township, Ontario, region north of Ft. Francis, where a crackling timber fire yesterday killed 14 settlers. Three men lost their lives fighting blazes on the Minnesota side of the border.

Mass funeral services were arranged for this afternoon at Emo, for 12 of the Canadian victims, Mrs. William LaBelle and her five children, and Mrs. Noah LaBelle and her four children.

Several hundred settlers from the Ontario danger zones were brought into Ft. Francis last night, and a crew of 500 men remained to fight the fires. The weather was clear and there was little wind today.

Vic Lofgren, forest ranger at Little Fork, Minn., said he had about 1,500 men guarding the smouldering fires in the International Falls district, adding that conditions had been good during the night.

Evacuate Settlers.

Minnesota's Adjutant General Ellard A. Walsh, in St. Paul, ordered a national guard airplane and several trucks and ambulances to the danger zone to aid in fighting the fires and evacuating settlers. Ontario police and forestry officials ordered all residents out of the Dance township area and rushed in crews of fire fighters.

It was just 20 years ago today that a timber fire destroyed the city of Cloquet and killed several hundred residents of the district.

State Aid Dwindles, Schools Face Crisis

OHIO DEFICIT $17,500,000

Payless Paydays Seen for City Teachers Unless Board Gets More Funds.

Mansfield schools were faced with a financial crisis today with "payless paydays" for teachers in the offing unless the state can raise more funds for school purposes by December.

With the state's school foundation program showing a deficit of nearly $17,500,000 State Education Director E. N. Dietrich predicted 75 per cent of Ohio schools would be forced to close by Dec. 1 unless the situation is remedied before then.

Bills to Go Unpaid.

While Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the Mansfield school board, said he was "not prepared to predict as to the future," he admitted that the city schools would be forced to let some of their bills go unpaid if the district does not receive its share of state funds for November.

The Mansfield board already owes $51,000 on notes held by Mansfield banks, and virtually the entire amount due the schools from the real estate tax collections during the past year has been consumed in advance distributions to the board.

$5,000 Left in County Taxes.

With the exception of about $5,000 still due in tax funds, the city schools will receive no more help from the county until after Jan. 1, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

446 Years Ago Today Columbus Found This Land

Mansfield observed quietly today an anniversary of an event without which there might never have been a Mansfield.

Today is Columbus day — the 446th anniversary of that Oct. 12 on which Christopher Columbus first set foot on what turned out to be America.

Banks were closed—which perplexed a lot of Mansfielders who had forgotten both that it was Columbus day and a legal holiday. Also closed were the liquor stores. County and city offices were open as usual, but state offices and the major markets in the large cities were closed.

Principal Mansfield observance will be a special program by the Mansfield lodge, Knights of Columbus, at the K. of C. home. Members also will listen to a nation-wide broadcast from New York by Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody, at 7:30 p. m. over the blue network of NBC.

Airplanes Fight Arab Horsemen

(By International News Service)

JERUSALEM—Modern British airplanes and mechanized "cavalry" battled with Arab horsemen on historic soil today in a series of some of the largest battles to date in Britain's attempt to crush Arab terrorism.

Many casualties were suffered on both sides in a major engagement near Nebron, where British soldiers, aided by aircraft, fought a large band of Arabs.

Troops and Arabs fought for 80 minutes in the narrow streets of Nablus when the soldiers attempted to demolish the house of a bomb-thrower.

* * *

Numerous cases of arson, sniping, and explosions of land mines were reported during the last 12 hours in other areas.

In a battle southwest of this city, one British soldier was killed and another was wounded.

Bethlehem, traditional scene of the nativity of the Prince of Peace, was virtually an armed camp following its capture by British forces from Arabs who had been holding it for weeks.

Other battles were waged between British infantrymen and Arabs around the village of Bureika, south of Haifa.

Special precautions to stamp out terrorism were taken following the unsuccessful attempt of Arab rebels to assassinate Edward Keith-Roach, district commissioner of Jerusalem.

He and other occupants of a convoy of cars escaped injury when four bombs, two of which exploded, were hurled at the automobiles as they proceeded along the Jericho road.

'CZAR' STRICKEN

Grand Duke, Head of House of Romanoff, Dies in Paris.

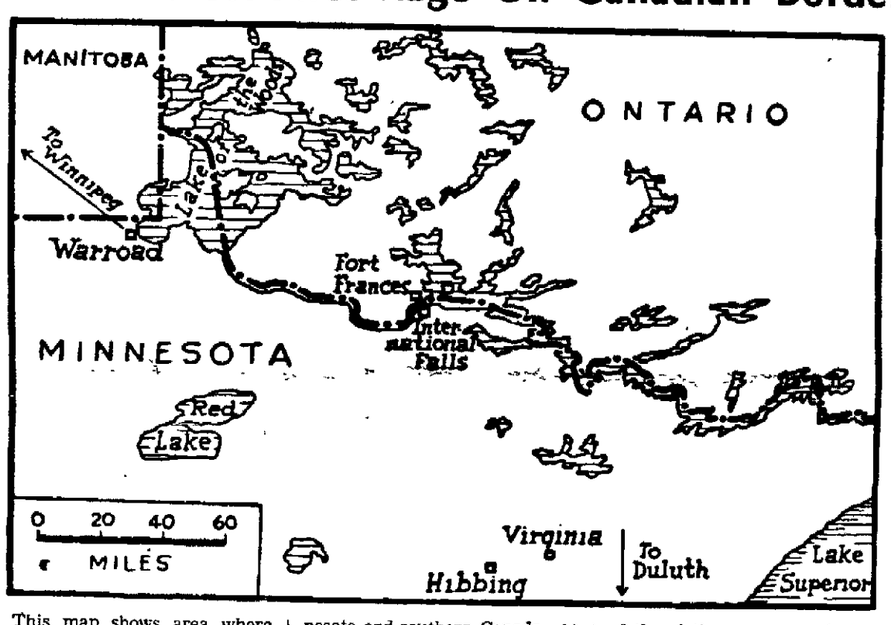
PARIS—(AP)—The 62-year-old Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirvitch, head of the house of Romanoff and self-proclaimed "czar of all the Russias," died today in the American hospital here.

The pretender to the non-existent Russian imperial throne had been living in exile in France since the bolshevist revolution. He declared himself to be czar in 1924. His wife, the Grandduchess Victoria Feodorovna, the granddaughter of Queen Victoria, died in 1936.

The pretender had been seriously ill for two weeks.

The grand duke was a cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II, last of the dynasty to reign.

Where Forest Fires Rage On Canadian Border



This map shows area where raging forest fires led to the mobilization of 5,000 men and an airplane patrol in northern Minnesota and southern Canada. At least 17 persons perished, farm houses were destroyed, and settlers were forced to flee. Twelve of the victims were members of the Frank, William and Noah LaBelle families, living in Dance township, province of Ontario.

CHECK SCHOOL FIRE ALARMS

City, State Authorities Seek to Extend Systems as Part of Building Program.

In a move to provide more adequate fire protection for 6,000 Mansfield children, state and city fire authorities today were engaged in a study of the city's school alarm system.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Fred Galley, Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and City Electrician Ernest Adams are making a survey of the auxiliary alarm systems of eight schools for the purpose of extending the system.

Seeburger said the findings will be presented to the board of education with recommendations for the necessary extensions.

The report will include a recommendation that auxiliary systems be installed in connection with the $1,000,000 school building program which is to get under way Oct. 29. Auxiliary systems call for alarms on each floor of the building.

The chief said that only four schools, Senior and John Simpson Junior high school, Bowman and Hedges were adequately equipped with alarms.

Schools that have only one alarm box and at which Seeburger said he would recommend the installation of additional equipment are Western avenue, Carpenter, Brinkerhoff, Bushnell, Newman, West Fifth, Prospect and Woodland.

COLD 'PRISON'

Transient Locked In Refrigerator Car for Three Days.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Woodrow Smith, 22, of High Point, N. C., probably will face a trespass charge when physicians say he can go to court, but anyway he is out of a refrigerator car in which he was imprisoned for three days.

Railroad detectives heard someone pounding on the car door and rescued Smith. Physicians said he was near collapse from exposure and hunger.

FOUR INJURED

Mansfielders Figure in Auto Accident in Minnesota.

Four Mansfielders were injured, none seriously, when their automobile left a Minnesota highway yesterday afternoon and turned over, it was learned here today.

Those injured were Mr. and Mrs. George J. Kochenderfer, 81 Rowland avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sherman Weaver, 113 Blymyer avenue. Kochenderfer is editor of The News-Journal.

The Mansfielders were on their way to Minneapolis to visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kochenderfer and their new daughter. Robert Kochenderfer is the son of the Mansfield editor. The Weavers are the parents of Mrs. Kochenderfer.

A rear tire blowout caused the car to leave the road and turn over, Kochenderfer related over the telephone. Most seriously injured was Weaver, who suffered two broken ribs. Other members of the party suffered bruises and cuts. The accident occurred at Farmington, Minn., 18 miles south of Minneapolis, about 3 p. m. The car was badly damaged.

CHOOSES DEATH

N. Y. Artist Hangs Self Rather Than Go On Relief.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Peter Schmauss, 70-year-old artist, chose death rather than apply for relief.

This was revealed today with discovery of a note after his body was found hanging in an apartment. The note stated:

"I will not go on home relief or apply for old-age assistance."

TELLS OF UNION THREATS HERE

Ex-CIO Member Testifies That Organizers Said 'We'll Own Shop Soon.'

Testimony of former CIO union members that union organizers had urged workers at the plant of the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company to "stand back of the union, for it won't be long until we own the shop" was presented yesterday at the National Labor Relations board hearing of charges of unfair labor practices against the Mansfield firm.

The testimony was given by B. F. Eckstein, former member of Local 705 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, who appeared as a witness for the Ideal company.

Eckstein was one of 17 workers at the Ideal plant who dropped out of the union because they disapproved of practices of organizers.

He said he also objected to a statement of an organizer who said "youngsters here would be better off under the Russian system where they are placed in institutions to permit the parents to work."

Louis H. Bonin, another plant employe and witness for the company, testified that union organiz-

RELIEF BURDEN HITS 1938 LOW

September Cost $4,000 Under Previous Month, Reflects Business, WPA Gains.

A general upturn in business conditions, extended activities of WPA today had reduced the Richland county relief load to the lowest figure in the past year, the monthly report of Relief Director J. Verne Finney showed.

Direct relief costs in the county dropped nearly $4,000 last month and the case load was reduced to 1,076 families, the lowest figure for any month since last fall.

The amount spent by county agencies for direct relief was $10,122, or $3,652 less than the August expenditures which totaled $13,774.

Finney attributed the decrease in the relief load to the "slight upturn in general business and extended activities of WPA" which took 276 families from the rolls during September.

The largest decrease in relief expenditures was shown in Mansfield and Madison township. The report showed a drop of 230 cases for these subdivisions with expenditures down $3,099.

Mansfield has 789 families on its relief rolls which cost $7,589 last month while Madison township was shown with 187 cases and expenditures listed at $1,168.

Shelby with a reduction of eight cases in its load showed a decrease of $104 in its monthly expenditures. The amount spent for 45 families during September was $771 as compared with $875 for the previous month.

Of the 10 townships participating in relief, only three were listed

GLAD OF MUD

Driver Escapes Serious Injury When He Lands in It.

"Happy landings" for Lloyd Franks, Shreve, meant landing in a very soft mud puddle yesterday afternoon on Lucas road when his car struck a bridge.

Franks was brought to General hospital in an ambulance, suffering from minor cuts and bruises and a heavy coating of mud. The attending physician said he had undoubtedly escaped more serious injury by landing in soft mud along the ditch.

Sheriff E. P. Long said that Franks had evidently gone to sleep before his car struck the bridge, and that when he was thrown out, he landed in a mudhole partially filled with water. He was pulled out by a passing driver.

FORD-MARTIN CHAT PUZZLES

Auto Labor, Management Ponder Significance of UAW President's Call.

(Picture on Page 14)

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—The automobile industry—labor and management alike—pondered today the significance of Homer Martin's "cordial call" on Henry Ford.

For the time being, yesterday's Martin-Ford conversation, followed by Martin's discussion with Harry Bennett, personnel chief of the Ford Motor Co., superseded in interest the 32-hour work week conferences with other auto companies.

Martin's United Automobile Workers are seeking a 32-hour system in a "share-the-work" move for the rehiring period of the auto industry, which currently is picking up speed to meet orders.

To suggestions Martin's visit, which was confined to an exchange of pleasantries with Ford but involved a talk on labor problems with Bennett, indicated friendlier relations between the UAW and the Ford company, Bennett said:

"There never was a fight between the company and organized labor. The only trouble was when some people tried to storm our gates. They can't do that. But if the men want to organize, it's all right with us."

Martin said he and Bennett, together two and a half hours, discussed the "various problems of the automobile industry, including the 32-hour week, equalization of wages, and proper working conditions for employes." The visit, he said, was "cordial and friendly."

Bennett, saying he feared some employers might try to "sweat more work out of the men," said he disagreed with Martin over the advisability of a 32-hour week.

LOSE PERMITS

Liquor Licenses of 2 Taverns Revoked by State.

The state board of liquor control today had revoked the liquor permits of Van's tavern, west of Mansfield, and the Miller Brothers' cafe on Orange street.

The board's action followed a hearing of charges of illegal sale of whisky on Sunday against F. J. VanArnhem, proprietor of Van's tavern, and Councilman Fred Miller, one of the operators of the Miller cafe.

Both men pleaded guilty to the charges Aug. 30 before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court and were fined $10 and costs. Charges were filed by a state liquor investigator who said he purchased whisky at both establishments on Sunday. The board later reviewed the charges at Columbus.

The order revokes licenses for the sale of both liquor and beer.

Indian Summer's With Us— And Isn't It Just Grand?

Indian summer weather is with us—just in case you want to know what's responsible for the out-of-season but very welcome warm weather.

It'll still be here tomorrow, though it may be a bit damp. The forecast says there'll be rain either late tonight or tomorrow, but the temperatures will remain high.

The mercury touched 84 yesterday afternoon, and had climbed to 83 at 2 p. m. today.

Indian summer, according to authorities, may occur more than once (let's hope it does) during the fall. It usually follows the first heavy frost of the autumn, such as the one experienced hereabouts last week.

That makes it nice for the scenery-lovers, because it brings bright sunshine to show off the richly-colored foliage of the trees.

It's easy on the coal bin, too.

Uninvited, West To Campaign In State—Speaks at Ashland

Without the sponsorship of the Democratic state executive committee, Charles West, former 17th district congressman and President Roosevelt's "New Deal" campaigner was preparing today to invade Ohio for a series of campaign addresses opening in Ashland Thursday Oct. 20.

The former undersecretary of the interior indicated that he would make several other speeches throughout the state in behalf of the party ticket before the Nov. 8 election.

Commenting on the statement last month of Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, seeking re-election, that Ohio Democrats would not welcome "campaign assistance from beyond our borders," West was quoted as saying: "He just had an emotion and mistook it for an idea."

Kennedy's remarks were taken by party leaders to refer to West and other New Dealers in Washington.

West, whose home is in Granville, said he would vote for Kennedy because he felt he had been a good secretary of state.

Lorain County Slot Machine Bribe Trial Nears Jury

THREE DEPUTY SHERIFFS GO BACK TO POSTS

Sheriff Reinstates Discharged Officers as Attorneys Open Final Arguments.

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA — Lorain county's notorious "slot machine case" moved toward its climax today.

The common pleas court jury of nine women and three men returned to Judge Guy B. Findley's courtroom to hear final arguments of Prosecutor Howard R. Butler and Defense Attorney Charles Adams in the bribery trial of five admitted slot machine operators.

Reinstatement of three deputies suspended yesterday for "insubordination" by Sheriff William F. Grall, who had testified as a state witness under immunity from prosecution that he received about $3,000 as his share of the "payoff."

Application by four of Grall's five office bondsmen for release as his surety.

Circulation of recall petitions against Grall, a Democrat, under the direction of William H. Jenne county Democratic executive committeeman.

Return to Jobs.

Deputy Sheriffs John Fulton, Emil Kubiske and John Judge said last night they would return to their posts for "the best interests of the public." Grall said he decided to reinstate them lest the suspensions "jeopardize the outcome of the bribery trial." He accused the deputies of urging his bondsmen to "desert" him.

Those on trial are William Ziegman, Stanton Hobbs, William Peer, David Crawford, sr., and Davis Crawford, jr. The elder Crawford, suffering from a heart ailment, was taken to the courtroom on a stretcher yesterday.

Assistant Prosecutor William Wickens said in opening the final arguments that in the jury's hands lies "the reputation of Lorain county." He said the defendants represented "a big time racket which should be driven from the county."

He said he computed that the defendants made $27,500 in two years of operation in the county "in addition to revenue from machines in the cities."

"At least they are five times as bad as the sheriff and Bauer (Alfred G. Bauer, Elyria Democratic leader, who testified he was the go-between) because they got five times the money," said Wickens.

"When they paid the money, did they pay it to Grall and pay it to influence him in his duty?" Wickens asked. "That is your sole question."

John Von Blum of defense counsel said testimony showed "no word or payments or offers of payments to the sheriff." He charged the prosecution with injecting testimony relating to slot machine operation "to becloud the issue."

"Was there bribery?" Von Blum asked. "That is all there is to this case."

Strands of Hair Principal Clue In N. Y. Sex Slaying

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—Police directed their search today for the slayer of pretty 17-year-old Mary Imelda Coyle to a confidential list of sex degenerates, and examined in the laboratory as the most tangible clue the 10 to 15 strands of four-inch light brown hair found clutched in the dead girl's hand.

These moves followed release of two suspects—both friends of the Coyle family—after they produced perfect alibis for their movements Monday night when the shy and devoutly religious girl was attacked and brutally beaten to death.

The victim's father, Frank, a stone cutter who left home a year ago, reappeared in New Rochelle during the night and submitted to questioning by police, explaining he would do everything possible to aid in the investigation. He was not detained by police.

Another clue regarded as important was the story of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Hersh, who live but five blocks from the houseboat which was the slain girl's home. Mrs. Hersh told police she was awakened at 1:30 a. m. yesterday by a girl's cries from a car parked outside her home.

Up and Down THE STREET

Students at Senior high school are becoming veterans before the camera. Last week photographers began taking pictures of the students for "The Manhigan", school annual to be published in June, and Monday the entire student body went through a regular fire drill for a motion picture which will be shown at a theater here later.

A picture, apparently inspired by the drive of dry forces years ago to obtain prohibition, has been uncovered by workmen who recently removed a section of blackboard at Carpenter school. The picture shows "Alcohol" as a huge bloated figure, with smaller figures representing "bread" and "milk" and two very small children marked "Education." The inference was that a great deal more money was spent for alcohol then than for any of the necessities of life or for education. On the drawing are the initials O. P. C. Those who have seen it are wondering if it could have been drawn by Oliver P. Crouse, 62 Crouse street, who attended school there years ago.

Mansfield WPA workers are athletically inclined. During the summer months, they conducted various playlot activities, including a men's softball league of 10 teams. Encouraged by the success of their summer program, the leaders have moved their activities indoors for the fall and winter. A vacant storeroom on North Main street large enough to permit group activities has been obtained.

Contrary to most prisoners who count the hours of their jail terms, a woman prisoner at the county jail refused to leave today after serving a nine-day term for disorderly conduct. The inmate, who was arrested while visiting in Mansfield, said she was satisfied with the jail as a home and didn't want to go back to her relatives here. Somewhat puzzled, deputy sheriffs were seeking relatives to be responsible for her.

Last Saturday Carroll took movies of the game between Mansfield Tygers and Columbus East high school at Stadium field. Each day scenes familiar to Mansfielders, are being taken and will be incorporated in the film.

DOOMS HOPE OF U.S. ARMS SLASH

Roosevelt Announces Nation's Naval Building Next Year to Reach New High.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's announcement that next year's naval expenditures will be increased to a new peace-time high doomed today any hope still held by officials for a reduction in armaments.

Many officials for some time have seen no immediate prospects of an international conference looking toward disarmament. With the European situation still uncertain and renewed activity in the Sino-Japanese conflict, they were understood to believe the time inopportune for such discussions now.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement was made at his press conference late yesterday. He said that rather than retard its national defense program the United States would speed it up and that an increase of $150,000,000 in next year's naval budget would be necessary to carry on new warship construction.

Such an increase would bring the naval appropriation for the fiscal year 1940 to more than $700,000,000. In addition there may be larger expenditures for the army, especially coast defense and anti-aircraft batteries.

The president gave no explanation for his belief that expenditures for national defenses should be increased. However, his statement was interpreted as an indirect answer to German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's speech at Saarbrucken last Saturday in which he warned the world that Germany would continue her armaments program because Great Britain and France could not be trusted.

TARRED, FEATHERED EVANGELIST JOINS BRIDE; 10 OF KIN JAILED

(By United Press)

MARIETTA—Joseph A. Dixon, 42, Nazarene evangelist of Madison, S. D., and his young bride ate their first "honeymoon breakfast" in peace today because 10 of her relatives and friends were in jail after assertedly kidnaping and tarring and feathering him an hour after the wedding.

The evangelist's bride, the 22-year-old former Opal Hasley, a farmer's daughter, vowed that "I love my husband and I'm going to stick by him," while her father, three brothers and six relatives and friends languished in county jail on kidnaping charges under $1,000 bond each.

She held a Bible in her hand as she told of her love for her husband, whom she married after a tumultuous "revival meeting" courtship that started a month ago and almost ended abruptly when her father, 65-year-old Wesley Hasley, had the evangelist thrown in jail because he assertedly found him nude in her bedroom, while she was working in the kitchen.

The bridegroom, still shaken from the effects of the tarring and feathering he underwent, would not discuss his troubles. He had told Washington county prosecutor William Summers that he was abducted Monday night from the home of a friend, Charlie Campbell, an hour after he was married. Two men, he said, summoned him to the door and said that they had some mail for him.

"I reached for it," he said, "and the men grabbed me and put me in a car. They drove me out into the country, and another car followed. They threatened me, pulled off my clothes and used tar and feathers on me. I saw there were too many against me and I couldn't do anything."

When they stopped beside the highway for the alleged attack, he said, another car arrived. He said that 10 persons, including two women, took part in the attack. He finally was released, he said, and started to walk back to his bride when Ohio Highway Patrolman John Mundrake found him.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS LANDED FOR INVASION

Meet First Contingents of Million Chinese in Bitter Battle Near Hong Kong.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The British government today warned Japan that it expects full protection of British interests in South China.

(By United Press)

HONG KONG—Japanese troops started an invasion of South China today in an effort to crush the last great Chinese center of resistance.

Thousands of troops were landed from 70 transports on the shores of Bias bay, the notorious pirate lair on the coast east of Hong Kong.

They entrenched themselves, established a base, and sent advance units inland toward Canton, 90 miles northwest of Bias bay.

Within a few miles of the coast they met the first contingents of 1,000,000 Chinese. Foreign military observers here received reports the heavy fighting was in progress.

The opening of a new drive extended the Japanese theater of operations in China to a total area of 774,000 square miles—about 1,209 miles from north to south and about 600 miles from the coast to central China.

Drive Long Planned.

Japan had been contemplating the advisability of a big scale drive for many months. For several days past, Japanese units had been landing along the coast near Hong Kong.

At dawn today, the Japanese began pouring ashore at the village of Hachung, 40 miles from Hong Kong.

Within a few hours of the landing, word reached Hong Kong first that there were 50 transports in the bay and that 30,000 men had landed. Then the figures were raised to 70 transports and 50,000 men, and the landing continued.

Massed Japanese planes coincidently made a devastating bombardment in the Swatow area, 150 miles up the coast.

It was expected that the first strategic problem of the Japanese would be to cut the Canton-Kowloon railroad which runs 110 miles from British Hong Kong to Canton, and thus cut off one of the most important Chinese sources of war materials from abroad.

The Japanese navy commander in chief in the southern zone said that the purpose of the new invasion was to "disillusion the Chinese people." He warned that though they would not molest nonresisters among the Chinese, no mercy would be shown to those who challenged the Japanese.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Majority of Germans In U. S. Steering Clear of Bund, Are Opposed to It

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In view of the attempt of the Nazi bund to extend Hitlerism to the United States, it seems important to emphasize just now the fight of others of German blood against the provocative operations of Fritz Kuhn and his Nazi organization. Indiscriminate resentment against all Germanic groups may be avoided if it is known and kept in mind that the Nazis are in the minority among those of German origin or stock and that no element in the American community is more angrily opposed to them.

The statement of Justice Gustave W. M. Wieboldt, of the New York court of special sessions, at a dinner of the New York council of the Steuben society last Saturday is firm enough.

"We know that they are un-American in their ways and ventures," he said, "and that is something that we shouldn't stand for as an American organization. They do not believe in religious freedom."

* * *

Justice Wieboldt added that some members of the Nazi bund were not American citizens but that all members of the Steuben society were, and called on all members of the society to stand together with one common goal to end the German-American bund.

Theodore H. Hoffman, national chairman of the Steuben society, recognized in the bund an enemy of all patriotic, law-abiding Americans of German blood and made an address supplementing a long article published under his name in the October number of the Steuben News, the officials bulletin of the national council of the Steuben society.

"For four years," he said, "we have been silent against the untruthful attacks on us by the bund. Now we must come out and show exactly where the great bulk of American of German extraction tion on this question."

* * *

In his reply to attacks by Fuehrer Kuhn's Nazi group Mr. Hoffman wrote in the bulletin that a speech by Kuhn, as reported, was in essence a plain attack on the fundamental law of the United States.

"His cry, 'away with parliamentarianism!'" Mr. Hoffman wrote, "substituting therefore one leader whom all must obey, means nothing less than the abrogation of the rights of a free press, freedom of assemblage, freedom in the study of facts and to express conclusions and opinions thereon freely, freedom of religious belief, or, in other words, abrogation of democracy.

"His expressed views are equally fundamentally opposed to all the aims and purposes of the Steuben society.

"It would seem that in the case of Mr. Kuhn the time has arrived to speak out in justice to its members, as well as to the American principles of government, and that by not doing so tolerance would become nothing but cowardice.

"If the A. D. V. (the Nazi bund) is truly American, why have not its members joined the many German societies already existing in America? Why do they keep abusing and vilifying citizens in these older societies who, 20 years ago, saved them from starvation by contributing thousands of dollars to the child feeding fund?

"If one must have one fuehrer, for which post a certain Fritz Kuhn modestly admits that he is the man, what is this fuehrer going to do for us?

"Will he tell us what we must think, if we may think?

"For whom we must vote?

"Where we must buy?

"What books and papers we are allowed to read?

"What color clothes we must wear?

"Who annointed this Fritz with the sacred castor oil of divine domination?

"It would seem somewhat similar to the little poodle dog barking at the moon when Mr. Fritz Kuhn paints a picture of the entire German-American element in this country being unified and kept unified like a herd of sheep in his camp with himself as shepherd."

* * *

There appears to be no comparable organization of Americans of Italian origin or stock loyal to the American constitution and equally resentful against the parallel conspiracy to promote outposts of Italian fascism in the United States.

Nazism, however, can have no more effective opposition than that now presented by Americans of German blood who have come to recognize the menace and effrontery of an anti-American organization whose activities imperil their reputation as citizens and their peace with their neighbors.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Everybody knows you can't keep a good Barrymore down, but the transformation of John, the youngest, strikes me as the most amazing coup in that amazing family.

Just a few years ago John, the big romantic star, was as particular about his profile as even Claudette Colbert, who had an entire set for "Tovarich" rebuilt rather than make an entrance showing the "wrong" side of her face. Don't know that John ever had sets rebuilt, but he was plenty demanding, living up to his professional status as a "great lover."

Barrymore went into a skid when the years made great-loving rather ridiculous for him, but he has skidded up again—by turning on the comedy at which he was always best, and by throwing his profile out the window. To realize how far he's thrown it, see "Hold That Coed" and then see—or remember—the John of such lyrically lovey-dovey silent pieces as "Eternal Love," "The Beloved Rogue" and "Don Juan!"

* * *

Corrigan's in the right place, making a movie based on his life. Hollywood has been shooting pictures backwards for years—and its critics still say it does things the wrong way. . . . Reminds me, there was a movie once that actually did go the wrong way. . . . Started at the end, with the hero's funeral, and went back from there. . . . Fine picture, too, "The Power and the Glory"—and Spencer Tracy was every bit the actor he is today—but it didn't make a penny's worth at the pay-windows.

Eddie Cantor's going to make pictures for RKO and Metro—and it was only months ago that Zanuck (20th Century-Fox) and Cantor were protesting undying affection at the big Cantor testimonial banquet. . . . They made one picture together, then phooey! . . . Story trouble—same as Eddie had with Sam Goldwyn.

Bert Leeds — he's Herbert L. Leeds in the screen credits—is one boy who knew what he wanted and went after it. A cutter at Warner's for five years, he tired of promises of a directing job and switched lots. . . . Twentieth gave him a "Jones Family" to do, and after that "Island In the Sky," Jane Withers' "Keep Smiling," then the Quintuplet feature, and now "Arizona Wildcat," again with Jane—all in less than a year.

* * *

Wonder what was in Nancy Carroll's thoughts the other eve. . . . Saw her leaving a preview, in which she's done a minor role, and she walked alone through the autographic lanes—with NO takers! All the kids were watching for the exit of Virginia Bruce, the STAR, who was just a little stock girl at Paramount when Nancy was a movie queen. . . . I don't know what Nancy was thinking, but I do know that she held her head up and smiled while she thought it—and it seemed to me that a girl who can do that has licked Hollywood!

They're tearing down and rebuilding at the old "U" lot. . . . Spending a million on new stages and offices, tearing down the relics of Hollywood's beginnings. . . . Sentimentalists are weeping quietly—because here practically all of Hollywood's once great and now great have worked, one time or another. . . . Me, I'm glad. . . . Of all the lots in town, this one has been the most depressing, a regular romping ground for movie ghosts.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents Stubbornly refuse anything else.

SET FOR NOV. 1

Personal Tax Collections for Last Half Year Nears.

The last county tax collection this year will begin Nov. 1 when the period for payment of general and classified personal taxes opens. County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today

With the greater part of the personal levies paid during the first-half collection last spring, receipts during the final period are expected to total less than $100,000, county officials said.

Most of the amount still due is owed by business and industrial firms, since most of the individual property owners who pay only a small personal levy, paid the entire amount during the first half of the year, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said

Statements will be mailed to property holders who still owe personal tax and returns may be sent by mail, the auditor explained.

THEATER

THERE is pathos in the announcement that Lionel Barrymore has given up the role of Scrooge in the forthcoming production of Dickens' "Christmas Carol". For years the oldest of the Barrymore brothers has wanted to play the character and has tried many times to sell the idea to his producers. But not until this year was it decided to film the Christmas classic. But it was too late then for Lionel to realize his dream. He is in ill health and probably will do little work on the screen in the future. He has asked that Reginald Owen take the part. A youngster named Terry Kilburn will play Tiny Tim.

"Broadway Musketeers."

A dramatic story, interwoven with comedy and thrills, is told in "Broadway Musketeers", opening tomorrow at the Ohio. Three little girls who grow up in an orphanage meet years later on Broadway and again their destinies are strangely entwined with tragedy for one. Margaret Lindsay, Ann Sheridan and Marie Wilson are the Musketeers, with John Litel in the leading male role.

"King of Alcatraz."

Probably suggested by a recent tragedy off the Pacific coast when gangsters took over a pleasure boat, is the theme of "King of Alcatraz" in which Public Enemy No. 1 escapes from the federal prison and stows away aboard a coastwise ship, together with a gang of his badmen. Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan, Robert Preston and J. Carrol Naish head the cast. Booked for Madison, Thursday.

"Scarface" Re-issued.

An interesting re-issue which the Park theater presents Thursday and the remainder of the week is "Scarface" one of the earlier and more thrilling gangster pictures. It was in this second Paul Muni starring picture that the great character actor made his first bid for fame. With him were Ann Dvorak, Karen Morley, Boris Karloff and George Raft. A second feature will be "The Lady In Scarlet".

Joneses In Jam.

Continuing through Thursday at the Majestic is the double-feature bill with Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea in "Woman Chases Man", a romantic comedy, and "Safety In Numbers", another of the popular Jones Family stories, in which all of the Joneses manage to get into a jam at the same time.

Lorain County Slot Machine Bribe Trial Nears Jury

THREE DEPUTY SHERIFFS GO BACK TO POSTS

Sheriff Reinstates Discharged Officers as Attorneys Open Final Arguments.

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA — Lorain county's notorious "slot machine case" moved toward its climax today.

The common pleas court jury of nine women and three men returned to Judge Guy B. Findley's courtroom to hear final arguments of Prosecutor Howard R. Butler and Defense Attorney Charles Adams in the bribery trial of five admitted slot machine operators.

Reinstatement of three deputies suspended yesterday for "insubordination" by Sheriff William F. Grall, who had testified as a state witness under immunity from prosecution that he received about $3,000 as his share of the "payoff."

Application by four of Grall's five office bondsmen for release as his surety.

Circulation of recall petitions against Grall, a Democrat, under the direction of William H. Jenne county Democratic executive committeeman.

Return to Jobs.

Deputy Sheriffs John Fulton, Emil Kubiske and John Judge said last night they would return to their posts for "the best interests of the public." Grall said he decided to reinstate them lest the suspensions "jeopardize the outcome of the bribery trial." He accused the deputies of urging his bondsmen to "desert" him.

Those on trial are William Ziegman, Stanton Hobbs, William Peer, David Crawford, sr., and Davis Crawford, jr. The elder Crawford, suffering from a heart ailment, was taken to the courtroom on a stretcher yesterday.

Assistant Prosecutor William Wickens said in opening the final arguments that in the jury's hands lies "the reputation of Lorain county." He said the defendants represented "a big time racket which should be driven from the county."

He said he computed that the defendants made $27,500 in two years of operation in the county "in addition to revenue from machines in the cities."

"At least they are five times as bad as the sheriff and Bauer (Alfred G. Bauer, Elyria Democratic leader, who testified he was the go-between) because they got five times the money," said Wickens.

"When they paid the money, did they pay it to Grall and pay it to influence him in his duty?" Wickens asked. "That is your sole question."

John Von Blum of defense counsel said testimony showed "no word or payments or offers of payments to the sheriff." He charged the prosecution with injecting testimony relating to slot machine operation "to becloud the issue."

"Was there bribery?" Von Blum asked. "That is all there is to this case."

Strands of Hair Principal Clue In N. Y. Sex Slaying

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—Police directed their search today for 24 hours ending at noon today: the slayer of pretty 17-year-old Mary Imelda Coyle to a confidential list of sex degenerates, and examined in the laboratory as the most tangible clue the 10 to 15 strands of four-inch light brown hair found clutched in the dead girl's hand.

These moves followed release of two suspects—both friends of the Coyle family—after they produced perfect alibis for their movements Monday night when the shy and devoutly religious girl was attacked and brutally beaten to death.

The victim's father, Frank, a stone cutter who left home a year ago, reappeared in New Rochelle during the night and submitted to questioning by police, explaining he would do everything possible to aid in the investigation. He was not detained by police.

Another clue regarded as important was the story of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Hersh, who live but five blocks from the houseboat which was the slain girl's home. Mrs. Hersh told police she was awakened at 1:30 a. m. yesterday by a girl's cries from a car parked outside her home.

Japan Launches 'Big Push' In Southern China

Up and Down THE STREET

Students at Senior high school are becoming veterans before the camera. Last week photographers began taking pictures of the students for "The Manhigan", school annual to be published in June, and Monday the entire student body went through a regular fire drill for a motion picture which will be shown at a theater here later.

A picture, apparently inspired by the drive of dry forces years ago to obtain prohibition, has been uncovered by workmen who recently removed a section of blackboard at Carpenter school. The picture shows "Alcohol" as a huge bloated figure, with smaller figures representing "bread" and "milk" and two very small children marked "Education." The inference was that a great deal more money was spent for alcohol then than for any of the necessities of life or for education. On the drawing are the initials O. P. C. Those who have seen it are wondering if it could have been drawn by Oliver P. Crouse, 62 Crouse street, who attended school there years ago.

Mansfield WPA workers are athletically inclined. During the summer months, they conducted various playlot activities, including a men's softball league of 10 teams. Encouraged by the success of their summer program, the leaders have moved their activities indoors for the fall and winter. A vacant storeroom on North Main street large enough to permit group activities has been obtained.

Contrary to most prisoners who count the hours of their jail terms, a woman prisoner at the county jail refused to leave today after serving a nine-day term for disorderly conduct. The inmate, who was arrested while visiting in Mansfield, said she was satisfied with the jail as a home and didn't want to go back to her relatives here. Somewhat puzzled, deputy sheriffs were seeking relatives to be responsible for her.

CLUBS IN MOVIE

Pictures of Kiwanis, Rotary Included in Film of City.

Members of Mansfield Rotary club will "see themselves as others see them" when the movie "Around Town; Your Town, Mansfield" is completed and shown here.

T. J. Carroll, head of the National Films company, and his cameraman, H. C. Kunkleman, "shot" Rotary club members yesterday when that group met at the Mansfield-Leland hotel for their weekly luncheon. Tomorrow pictures will be taken of the Kiwanis club in its meeting.

Last Saturday Carroll took movies of the game between Mansfield Tygers and Columbus East high school at Stadium field. Each day scenes familiar to Mansfielders, are being taken and will be incorporated in the film.

DOOMS HOPE OF U.S. ARMS SLASH

Roosevelt Announces Nation's Naval Building Next Year to Reach New High.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's announcement that next year's naval expenditures will be increased to a new peace-time high doomed today any hope still held by officials for a reduction in armaments.

Many officials for some time have seen no immediate prospects of an international conference looking toward disarmament. With the European situation still uncertain and renewed activity in the Sino-Japanese conflict, they were understood to believe the time inopportune for such discussions now.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement was made at his press conference late yesterday. He said that rather than retard its national defense program the United States would speed it up and that an increase of $150,000,000 in next year's naval budget would be necessary to carry on new warship construction.

Such an increase would bring the naval appropriation for the fiscal year 1940 to more than $700,000,000. In addition there may be larger expenditures for the army, especially coast defense and anti-aircraft batteries.

The president gave no explanation for his belief that expenditures for national defenses should be increased. However, his statement was interpreted as an indirect answer to German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's speech at Saarbrucken last Saturday in which he warned the world that Germany would continue her armaments program because Great Britain and France could not be trusted.

TARRED, FEATHERED EVANGELIST JOINS BRIDE; 10 OF KIN JAILED

(By United Press)

MARIETTA—Joseph A. Dixon, 42, Nazarene evangelist of Madison, S. D., and his young bride ate their first "honeymoon breakfast" in peace today because 10 of her relatives and friends were in jail after assertedly kidnaping and tarring and feathering him an hour after the wedding.

The evangelist's bride, the 22-year-old former Opal Hasley, a farmer's daughter, vowed that "I love my husband and I'm going to stick by him," while her father, three brothers and six relatives and friends languished in county jail on kidnaping charges under $1,000 bond each.

She held a Bible in her hand as she told of her love for her husband, whom she married after a tumultuous "revival meeting" courtship that started a month ago and almost ended abruptly when her father, 65-year-old Wesley Hasley, had the evangelist thrown in jail because he assertedly found him nude in her bedroom, while she was working in the kitchen.

The bridegroom, still shaken from the effects of the tarring and feathering he underwent, would not discuss his troubles. He had told Washington county prosecutor William Summers that he was abducted Monday night from the home of a friend, Charlie Campbell, an hour after he was married. Two men, he said, summoned him to the door and said that they had some mail for him.

"I reached for it," he said, "and the men grabbed me and put me in a car. They drove me out into the country, and another car followed. They threatened me, pulled off my clothes and used tar and feathers on me. I saw there were too many against me and I couldn't do anything."

When they stopped beside the highway for the alleged attack, he said, another car arrived. He said that 10 persons, including two women, took part in the attack. He finally was released, he said, and started to walk back to his bride when Ohio Highway Patrolman John Mundrake found him.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. THOUSANDS OF TROOPS LANDED FOR INVASION

Meet First Contingents of Million Chinese in Bitter Battle Near Hong Kong.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The British government today warned Japan that it expects full protection of British interests in South China.

(By United Press)

HONG KONG—Japanese troops started an invasion of South China today in an effort to crush the last great Chinese center of resistance.

Thousands of troops were landed from 70 transports on the shores of Bias bay, the notorious pirate lair on the coast east of Hong Kong.

They entrenched themselves, established a base, and sent advance units inland toward Canton, 90 miles northwest of Bias bay.

Within a few miles of the coast they met the first contingents of 1,000,000 Chinese. Foreign military observers here received reports the heavy fighting was in progress.

The opening of a new drive extended the Japanese theater of operations in China to a total area of 774,000 square miles—about 1,209 miles from north to south and about 600 miles from the coast to central China.

Drive Long Planned.

Japan had been contemplating the advisability of a big scale drive for many months. For several days past, Japanese units had been landing along the coast near Hong Kong.

At dawn today, the Japanese began pouring ashore at the village of Hachung, 40 miles from Hong Kong.

Within a few hours of the landing, word reached Hong Kong first that there were 50 transports in the bay and that 30,000 men had landed. Then the figures were raised to 70 transports and 50,000 men, and the landing continued.

Massed Japanese planes coincidently made a devastating bombardment in the Swatow area, 150 miles up the coast.

It was expected, that the first strategic problem of the Japanese would be to cut the Canton-Kowloon railroad which runs 110 miles from British Hong Kong to Canton, and thus cut off one of the most important Chinese sources of war materials from abroad.

The Japanese navy commander in chief in the southern zone said that the purpose of the new invasion was to "disillusion the Chinese people." He warned that though they would not molest nonresisters among the Chinese, no mercy would be shown to those who challenged the Japanese.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Majority of Germans In U. S. Steering Clear of Bund, Are Opposed to It

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In view of the attempt of the Nazi bund to extend Hitlerism to the United States, it seems important to emphasize just now the fight of others of German blood against the provocative operations of Fritz Kuhn and his Nazi organization. Indiscriminate resentment against all Germanic groups may be avoided if it is known and kept in mind that the Nazis are in the minority among those of German origin or stock and that no element in the American community is more angrily opposed to them.

The statement of Justice Gustave W. M. Wieboldt, of the New York court of special sessions, at a dinner of the New York council of the Steuben society last Saturday is firm enough.

"We know that they are un-American in their ways and ventures," he said, "and that is something that we shouldn't stand for as an American organization. They do not believe in religious freedom."

* * *

Justice Wieboldt added that some members of the Nazi bund were not American citizens but that all members of the Steuben society were, and called on all members of the society to stand together with one common goal to end the German-American bund.

Theodore H. Hoffman, national chairman of the Steuben society, recognized in the bund an enemy of all patriotic, law-abiding Americans of German blood and made an address supplementing a long article published under his name in the October number of the Steuben News, the officials bulletin of the national council of the Steuben society.

"For four years," he said, "we have been silent against the untruthful attacks on us by the bund. Now we must come out and show exactly where the great bulk of American of German extraction tion on this question."

* * *

In his reply to attacks by Fuehrer Kuhn's Nazi group Mr. Hoffman wrote in the bulletin that a speech by Kuhn, as reported, was in essence a plain attack on the fundamental law of the United States.

"His cry, 'away with parliamentarianism!'" Mr. Hoffman wrote, "substituting therefore one leader whom all must obey, means nothing less than the abrogation of the rights of a free press, freedom of assemblage, freedom in the study of facts and to express conclusions and opinions thereon freely, freedom of religious belief, or, in other words, abrogation of democracy.

"His expressed views are equally fundamentally opposed to all the aims and purposes of the Steuben society.

"It would seem that in the case of Mr. Kuhn the time has arrived to speak out in justice to its members, as well as to the American principles of government, and that by not doing so tolerance would become nothing but cowardice.

"If the A. D. V. (the Nazi bund) is truly American, why have not its members joined the many German societies already existing in America? Why do they keep abusing and vilifying citizens in these older societies who, 20 years ago, saved them from starvation by contributing thousands of dollars to the child feeding fund?

"If one must have one fuehrer, for which post a certain Fritz Kuhn modestly admits that he is the man, what is this fuehrer going to do for us?

"Will he tell us what we must think, if we may think?

"For whom we must vote?

"Where we must buy?

"What books and papers we are allowed to read?

"What color clothes we must wear?

"Who annointed this Fritz with the sacred castor oil of divine domination?

"It would seem somewhat similar to the little poodle dog barking at the moon when Mr. Fritz Kuhn paints a picture of the entire German-American element in this country being unified and kept unified like a herd of sheep in his camp with himself as shepherd."

* * *

There appears to be no comparable organization of Americans of Italian origin or stock loyal to the American constitution and equally resentful against the parallel conspiracy to promote outposts of Italian fascism in the United States.

Nazism, however, can have no more effective opposition than that now presented by Americans of German blood who have come to recognize the menace and effrontery of an anti-American organization whose activities imperil their reputation as citizens and their peace with their neighbors.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Everybody knows you can't keep a good Barrymore down, but the transformation of John, the youngest, strikes me as the most amazing coup in that amazing family.

Just a few years ago John, the big romantic star, was as particular about his profile as even Claudette Colbert, who had an entire set for "Tovarich" rebuilt rather than make an entrance showing the "wrong" side of her face. Don't know that John ever had sets rebuilt, but he was plenty demanding, living up to his professional status as a "great lover."

Barrymore went into a skid when the years made great-loving rather ridiculous for him, but he has skidded up again—by turning on the comedy at which he was always best, and by throwing his profile out the window. To realize how far he's thrown it, see "Hold That Coed" and then see—or remember—the John of such lyrically lovey-dovey silent pieces as "Eternal Love," "The Beloved Rogue" and "Don Juan!"

* * *

Corrigan's in the right place, making a movie based on his life. Hollywood has been shooting pictures backwards for years—and its critics still say it does things the wrong way. . . . Reminds me, there was a movie once that actually did go the wrong way. . . . Started at the end, with the hero's funeral, and went back from there. . . . Fine picture, too. "The Power and the Glory"—and Spencer Tracy was every bit the actor he is today—but it didn't make a penny's worth at the pay-windows.

Eddie Cantor's going to make pictures for RKO and Metro—and it was only months ago that Zanuck (20th Century-Fox) and Cantor were protesting undying affection at the big Cantor testimonial banquet. . . . They made one picture together, then phooey! . . . Story trouble—same as Eddie had with Sam Goldwyn.

Bert Leeds — he's Herbert I. Leeds in the screen credits—is one boy who knew what he wanted and went after it. A cutter at Warner's for five years, he tired of promises of a directing job and switched lots. . . . Twentieth gave him a "Jones Family" to do, and after that "Island In the Sky," Jane Withers' "Keep Smiling," then the Quintuplet feature, and now "Arizona Wildcat," again with Jane—all in less than a year.

* * *

Wonder what was in Nancy Carroll's thoughts the other eve. . . . Saw her leaving a preview, in which she's done a minor role, and she walked alone through the autographic lanes—with NO takers! All the kids were watching for the exit of Virginia Bruce, the STAR, who was just a little stock girl at Paramount when Nancy was a movie queen. . . . I don't know what Nancy was thinking, but I do know that she held her head up and smiled while she thought it—and it seemed to me that a girl who can do that has licked Hollywood!

They're tearing down and rebuilding at the old "U" lot. . . . Spending a million on new stages and offices, tearing down the relics of Hollywood's beginnings. . . . Sentimentalists are weeping quietly—because here practically all of Hollywood's once great and now great have worked, one time or another. . . . Me, I'm glad. . . . Of all the lots in town, this one has been the most depressing, a regular romping ground for movie ghosts.

Alliance Due for Whipping

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

WHO, UPPER SANDUSKY?—"Somebody's going to pay for that Mt. Vernon defeat," Al Fendrick, Madison high coach, warns.

WAIT FOR ANSWER—That all-important question to Wooster football fans—"Just how good is this 1938 Wooster college eleven?"—will be answered Saturday when the Scots go to Cleveland. L. C. Boles' men gave a pretty good idea of their strength when they whipped Denison, 10-0.

TYGERS HELD 'EM—Steve Belichick and Johnny Ries, who couldn't score against the Tygers when the Western Reserve Frosh performed here last fall, are tied for second place in the Ohio collegiate touchdown race.

VICTORY HUNGRY—It was early in 1936 that Chicago scored its last Big Ten triumph . . . a 7-6 decision over Wisconsin. The last Iowa victory came against Illinois, 19-0, in 1935. These two teams meet Saturday in a game that will probably decide the Big Ten cellar championship.

WINS FOR PENN—George Munger, new Penn coach, is the wonder boy of eastern football. With what appeared to be ordinary material in September, he has licked Lafayette and Yale and pulled Penn out of the doldrums. He's only 29, wears a uniform in practice and on the bench Saturdays and can run most of his players to the ground.

TOO BAD, ALLIANCE—A lot of current football enthusiasm aroused by Alliance's undefeated record will be lost after Massillon makes a visit to that city Friday night. None of Alliance's four victories were scored against any Massillons.

MORE LIKE BASEBALL—Youngstown East lays claim to something of a record, splitting even in four low-score games in which three safeties figured. East lost to Akron North, 6-2, and New Castle, Pa., 8-7, and then downed Struthers, 7-6, and Youngstown Rayen, 2-0.

Wolverines Expected to Test Minnesota.

WHAT A TEST, TOO—The supreme test of Fritz Crisler's up-and-coming Michiganders comes Saturday when they clash with Minnesota in the standout Big Ten game of the coming week-end. Minnesota has yet to prove that it is as great as the Gophers of the past four seasons, despite victories over Washington, Nebraska and Purdue. Michigan packs more offensive guns than any team the Gophers have met to date.

COST YANKS MONEY—Yes sir, it cost the Yankees $175,000 to win the series in four straight. That's the amount they must refund on tickets which were sold for the fifth game. Optimistic note: The Cubs peddled ducats for a sixth game in Chicago.

WORST IS YET TO COME—Unless they show more improvement than they have up to now, Ohio's Staters may take it on the chin four more times. Those games with Northwestern, Purdue, Illinois and Michigan loom bigger every week-end.

TIES FOR TOUCHDOWNS—Oscar Fensch, manager of a clothing store in Shelby, really got himself into something when he offered a tie for every touchdown scored by the Whippets. Sixteen touchdowns have already been scored by Bill Query's men this season.

THEY CALL HIM COWBOY—Clipped from the John Carroll roster: "WILLARD, Ed—nicknamed 'Cowboy' because of his posterior appendages. Although only a junior, he is one of the brightest end prospects in recent Carroll history. His ability as a pass snagger is uncanny."

Babe Through If Durocher Gets Job.

BEST baseball bet we know right now is that Babe Ruth will not be back coaching for the Dodgers (it's a cinch he won't if Leo Durocher is the new manager). . . . Both the Giants and Cubs want Johnny Mize of the Cards and are ready to cough up plenty of the old mazuma. . . . The Reds appear to be about as well fixed as any outfit in the league, but they'd like to have Tony Cuccinello of the Bees at second base. . . . Pittsburgh wants Al Lopez of the same outfit and also must get a replacement for Gus Suhr at first base and some chucking. . . . Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's back ailment is more serious than anyone imagines, if you can believe dope from the coast. . . . In direct contrast to the Pitt-Fordham scoreless ties of the last three years, we give you Army and Columbia—18 touchdowns in the same period.

Not 'Acquainted' With Deal for Columbus.

COLUMBUS —(INS)—President Don Beach of the Columbus Baseball club said today he was not "acquainted" with reports that Cincinnati might buy the Red Birds from the St. Louis Cardinals but neither would he deny the transaction might be culminated shortly.

"Any negotiations for the purchase of the Columbus club would naturally be carried on between interested major league teams," Beach said. "I know nothing of any negotiations that might be going on between Cincinnati and St. Louis."

Tickets on Sale For Sandusky Game

Tickets for the Mansfield-Sandusky football game Saturday in Sandusky were placed on sale today at Senior high school and three drug stores.

Price of tickets as announced by school officials will be adults, 50 cents, and grade and high school students, 25 cents. Adult tickets will be sold only at the high school bookstore due to the small number sent here, according to George Sherman, school treasurer. Only 200 adult tickets will be sold here.

Student tickets can be purchased at Tawse pharmacy, Central drug store and Brown's drug store. Money from tickets purchased here will go to the high school. All tickets purchased in Sandusky will cost 50 cents.

DAYTON'S JACK PADLEY PACES OHIO SCORERS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Everett (Boots) Elkins, Marshall's great ball-carrying star, paced the collegiate football scoring pack from Ohio and adjoining territory today with 48 points, manufactured on eight touchdowns in three "thundering herd" conquests. On the strictly Ohio front the top-notcher was Jack Padley, Dayton university's elusive halfback from Pennsylvania, with 36 points.

BOWLING SCORES

SCORES manufactured in last night's league matches at the Meder alleys were only ordinary, with Bill Donnellan's 602 topping the individuals and the Mill Room's 2539 heading the team list. Both totals were registered in the Mansfield Tire league.

Seven Pairs Tangle

Pittsburgh Journeys West to Meet Wisconsin in One of Headliners.

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK —(AP)—Twenty-five unbeaten football teams, of major status, face the first big autumn shake-down Saturday. Seven games bring together pairs of undefeated aggregations. Eleven other groups take on major opposition capable of smearing their spotless records.

Eastern football provides a majority of the inviolate elevens with two of them meeting inter-sectional rivals. Pittsburgh, the ranking power, journeys to Madison, Wis., to meet unbeaten Wisconsin and New York U., a greatly underrated group, entertains North Carolina here.

Sets Terrific Pace.

These are two of the best. Pitt has been traveling at a terrific pace and is due for a let down against a team that licked Marquette and Iowa. North Carolina bouncing back from a trimming by Tulane will be tough.

Carnegie Tech, fresh from two easy killings, entertains Holy Cross ranked with Dartmouth as New England's top team, in another clash of unbeaten forces. Brown, which surprised Harvard in its opener, hopes to do the same against Dartmouth. The Bruins have good backs and a smart line, while Dartmouth showed the lack of a second running lineman against Princeton.

Already victor over Colgate and Harvard, Cornell tackles Syracuse. Cornell has beaten the Orange only once since 1933 and Syracuse's emphatic triumph over Maryland indicates Ossie Solem's boys have something.

Colgate plays undefeated—and undermanned — Columbia which has played excellent football on two straight Saturdays. Here again the situation is ripe for an upset. Princeton should improve, plans on giving Penn's wonder team a real tussle. Fordham, as yet untested, plays Purdue.

Michigan's resurgent forces hardly seem up to the Minnesota standard as these two unbeaten powers clash, but the Gophers will have to capitalize on scoring chances more often than against Purdue to beat the Wolverines.

Mighty Alabama, which didn't look particularly impressive downing North Carolina State, may have been playing 'possum to beguile Tennessee, also unbeaten, which just managed to get by Auburn. Mississippi let down after opening with an upset win over Louisiana State and should have plenty to handle in Vanderbilt, which has beaten Washington State and Kentucky.

Duke, just good enough to beat a sub-par Colgate outfit, meets Georgia Tech. Tech is quite capable of an upset after losing to Notre Dame by only one touchdown last week. Notre Dame has little to fear in Illinois, good and bad by turns.

'Cats Must Win.

Northwestern, spurred on by dreams of a Big Ten crown, faces plenty in an Ohio State eleven which should be a major factor once it controls its undoubted power. The unbeaten Wildcats must take this one to stay up in the title race.

Baylor and Texas Christian, undefeated leaders of the Southwest conference, face uncertain quantities in Centenary and Texas A. and M. Stanford, unimpressive in two outings, has a chance to get back in the running for the coast conference title by beating Oregon, currently the circuit's unbeaten leader.

Mansfield Boy Leads Kenyon

Richard Olin, for two years one of the main cogs in Kenyon football, captains the Lords this season. He has been an outstanding Ohio conference back for two seasons.

In addition to his football prowess, he was a member of the All-East swimming team that met the All-West squad in Florida. He is also a basketball letterman and will act as captain of the Kenyon track team this spring.

Athletics are not his only claim to college fame, for his name has consistently appeared on the Kenyon Merit List, indicative of high scholastic accomplishment.

As president of the Kenyon student body, he holds the most sought after position in Kenyon undergraduate ranks.

With all the necessary qualities of a Rhodes Scholarship candidate, Dick has not as yet decided whether to formally compete for that coveted prize. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin N. Olin of 135 Brinkerhoff street, Mansfield, Ohio.

Labels Report As 'Ridiculous'

Wrigley Says No Wholesale Shakeup Planned.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Owner Phil K. Wrigley and Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs, disappointed by the world series folding up of the team that drove gallantly to the National league pennant, "cooled down" today as they pondered plans to strengthen the club for the 1939 campaign.

Wrigley admitted there will be changes but said a wholesale shakeup of the club is "ridiculous."

An avalanche of rumors that had virtually the entire team traded off, started piling up after Hartnett, on his return from New York Monday, said that only four players—pitchers Dizzy Dean, Bill Lee, and Clay Bryant and third baseman Stan Hack—were sure of their jobs next season.

Wrigley himself, admitting there would be some deals to strengthen the Cubs, said he had no individual in mind except that "offhand, I'd swap for those New York Yankees."

He cleared up a couple of points—that the contract to be offered to Hartnett will be for one year because "that's as long as any of our contracts run," and that Tony Lazzeri, who was signed as player-coach last winter after 12 seasons with the Yankees, will have a place in the Cubs organization in 1939 "if he wants to stay with us."

It May Be Budge's Last as Amateur

BERKELEY, Cal. — (INS)—What may be J. Donald Budge's last tennis trophy as an amateur—a wooden mixing bowl and ladle—reposed on the Budge menage's table today while the red-thatched net wizard planned his future course.

All that lies between him and the golden gains of professionalism is the matter of choosing between several offers which he has received, the international tennis ace indicated.

Budge and his partner laced Margot Lumb, of England, and Bobby Riggs, U. S. Davis Cupper, 6-3, 8-6 in what was by far the best match of the tourney.

Harry Hopman, captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, won the singles crown by defeating Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, former international collegiate champion, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5, 8-6.

STOPS WHIZZER WHITE, PIRATES, TO WIN, 27-0

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals took the Pittsburgh Pirates in stride here last night, blanking the professional football eleven from Pennsylvania, 27 to 0. Cincinnati's defense nipped the famed "Whizzer" White and his fellow backs at every turn. Aerial tactics figured in all Bengal touchdown marches.

McCARTHY SATISFIED WITH YANKS FOR 1939

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Manager Joe McCarthy, convinced there is little he can do to strengthen his New York Yankees for next year, and Mrs. McCarthy left for their Buffalo, N. Y., home.

McCarthy will return after a few weeks to talk over 1939 plans, but admittedly there isn't very much to do. "I think we can stand pat and win again," he said.

Schmidt Stresses Blocking as Bucks Prep for Wildcats

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — This sport called football today became "a game of blocks" for the Ohio State football team.

Constant repetition of cross blocks, shoulder blocks, push blocks and just plain 'knock-em-out-of-the-way" blocks under the sharp eyes of Head Coach Francis Schmidt and Line Coach Ernie Godfrey has made the Bucks a bit weary physically of this "nursery" game.

But the stress laid on blocking assignments and their executions this week should register a big improvement in making the potentially dangerous Buck offense click Saturday in the back-breaking Big Ten battle against Northwestern's Wildcats.

As the Bucks polish up their running and pass plays, Schmidt has insisted that "every man do his blocking" on every play in an effort to smooth out the difficulties that stalled the Ohio State offensive at critical moments against Indiana and Southern California.

Godfrey, stubby, thin-haired line coach who has been around the gridiron wars a long time, expressed the problem as follows:

"Remember it's blocking that makes football. The best razzle-dazzle and hocus-pocus in the world will fall down unless you have some blocking to make it work."

The Bucks ran through a long offensive and defensive drill last night and gave notice of a powerful running attack for Saturday. Mike Kabcalo, Don Scott, Jim Langhurst, Forest Fordham and Jim Strausbaugh drove hard and fast against a few freshmen defenders with the non-ball carriers putting in the blocks to clear the path.

Despite an apparent improvement in practice form this week, the Bucks probably will enter the Wildcat fray as underdogs after that 14 to 7 defeat by Southern California.

Northwestern, by decisively winning over Kansas State and Drake, has forced revision of the preseason dope to include the Wildcats among the challengers to Minnesota's Big Ten supremacy.

Coach Lynn Waldorf uncovered two sparkling sophomores against Drake in the persons of Oliver Hahnenstein and Erwin Madsen, both shifty halfbacks. Hahnenstein picked up 148 yards from scrimmage in six plays and scored one touchdown on a 72-yard jaunt.

They will have a tough job to break into the regular Wildcat lineup, however, with such 1937 stars around as Jack Ryan, Bernie Jefferson and Jay Laskay, halfbacks, and George McGurn, fullback. Quarterback Dick Richards has been the only yearling to break into the backfield starting lineup.

These backs operate behind a veteran line with Diehl and Grefe as ends; Goights and Cutlich at tackles; Guritz and Method at guards and Haman at center.

In practice Tuesday, Waldorf hinted that Nick Conteas, 200-pound junior, might get the starting quarterback assignment.

SCHOOLS FACE FUND CRISIS

Aid From State Dwindles as Ohio Foundation Deficit Reaches $17,500,000.

promised last May that he would call a special session of the state legislature in November to study the school problem, state school offfcials had abandoned hope today of a session. Officials of the Ohio Education association said there was no disposition to put pressure on the governor for the special session.

"If the legislature relieves the financial dilemma by Feb. 28, I'll be happy," Walter B. Bliss, secretary of the association, said. He added that after Jan. 1, about $4,000,000 in sales tax revenue, now used for poor relief financing, would be available to schools.

Bliss presented a citizens' committee on school financing with five suggestions for raising more school funds. They are:

1. Eliminate sales tax discount to retailers, producing $1,250,000.

2. Add one cent to cigaret tax, producing an estimated $3,500,000 additional.

3. Eliminate cigaret tax discounts, giving schools $700,000.

4. Raising admission tax from three per cent to 10 per cent to produce an additional $3,500,000.

5. Appropriate $4,000,000 now used for retiring poor relief bonds, which will be paid out by Jan. 1.

Loren E. Souers, Canton, chairman of the citizens' school committee, was authorized to appoint three committees to investigate a proposal to establish a state school authority to assume and retire the $17,500,000 school foundation deficit; to find means of placing the foundation program on a financing basis, and to investigate possible sources of revenue for schools.

ers during the strike at the Ideal plant in December, 1936, "received so much money from out of town that I was suspicious."

Bonin added that the stories he wrote for the official CIO publication pertaining to union activities in Mansfield were "changed so much before they were published that they gave a different interpretation of the picture here and caused irritation among workers."

Other former Electrical union members, including Sam Thatcher, Joseph Mahon, Albert Nichols and J. F. Schoesler, said on the witness stand that they did not want the union to represent them in their dealings with officials at the Ideal plant.

Contending that it has a majority membership among the plant's workers, the union seeks certification as sole bargaining agency for workers.

Otto J. Fink, superintendent of the Ideal Electric company plant, was called to the stand today to testify regarding the attitude of workers at the factory and the activities of CIO union organizers during the past two years.

Other plant officials and workers were to be called as witnesses this afternoon by Attys. Thomas F. Veach and Earl W. LeFever, Cleveland, counsel for the company.

High Gridders Show Rotarians How They Do It

The ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel was turned into an indoor gridiron for yesterday's Rotary club luncheon when Coach J. Russell Murphy had two of his high school football teams show in "slow motion" various plays of the game.

Murphy, who was program chairman of the meeting, explained the technique of the game, describing plays and then having the teams demonstrate them in slow motion.

At next week's meeting Gerhart H. Seger, editor, author and lecturer, who was a member of the German reichstag before Hitler came into power will speak.

At one time Seger was imprisoned by Nazi officials and later escaped into Czechoslovakia. His talk before the Rotary club next week will be on Nazism and its leader, Reichsfuehrer Hitler. Atty. C. H. Henkel will be program chairman.

The schooners, which raced nearly six hours to a no contest yesterday, will try again tomorrow over the same 36-mile triangular course.

Police Report 3,000 Tickets Sold to Date for Ball.

A record crowd was predicted today for the fifth annual police ball which will be held Oct. 17 at the Coliseum by the Mansfield Police Recreation club.

Members of the committee checked up on the advance sale today and reported that nearly 3,000 tickets have already been sold. Last year 3,500 persons attended the event.

Ace Brigode and his Virginians, nationally known dance band, heard regularly over radio station WLW, will play for dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Proceeds of the annual dance will be used to purchase equipment in the police department including the annual supply of ammunition for target practice.

Sisters Will Be Guests at Film, 'Four Daughters'

Are you one of "Four Daughters?"

If you are and are still in school, you can gather up your sisters, with a letter of identification from your teacher or principal, and all of you may be guests of the Ohio theater next week when that theater persents the film, "Four Daughters."

And there will be guest tickets for all members of the family in Mansfield or vicinity which has the most daughters in it. They may be big or little, young or old, as long as they are sisters. The largest family of girls must register the names and addresses of the girls with the manager of the Ohio theater before Saturday night.

In the schoolgirl group, the girls may range from the first year to last year of high school. It is only necessary to present notes of identification at the theater box office next week to be admitted.

The picture, "Four Daughters" is the story of four sisters, their parents and the problems that may arise in an ordinary family when there are four daughters close together in age.

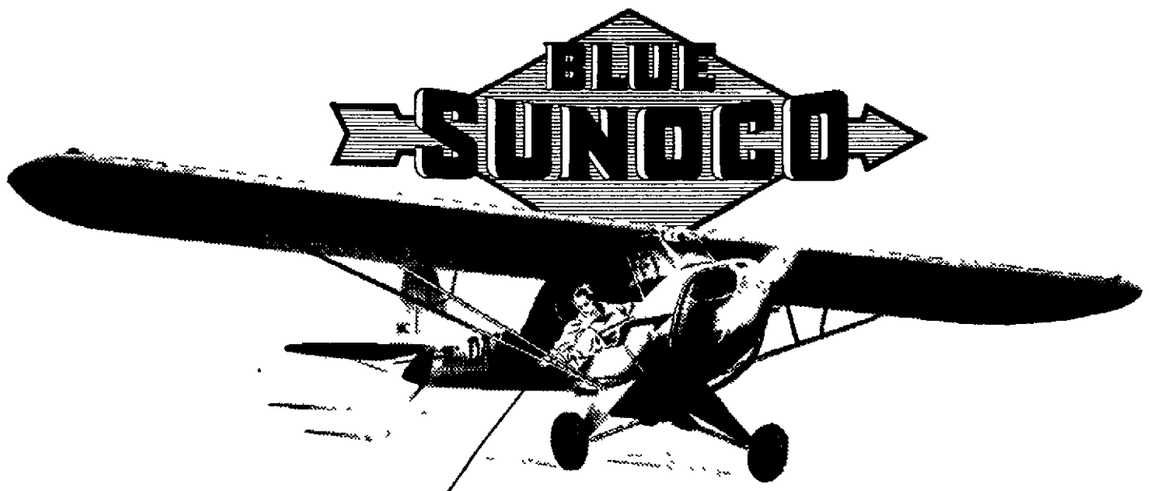
BLUE SUNOCO

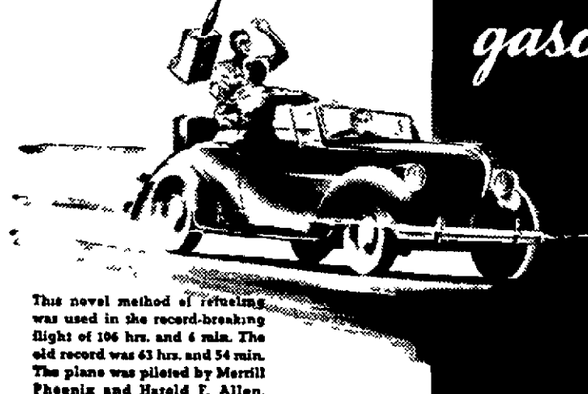


Aircooled Motors Corp., makers of this Franklin "50" engine, selected Blue Sunoco because their tests proved:

"...it gave more R.P.Ms., more power and greater economy than even the premium priced gasolines tested!"

Prior to this flight at Syracuse, N. Y., many different fuels were tested by Aircooled Motors Corporation. They found that this engine, which combines some features of both aviation and automobile engines, performed better with Blue Sunoco than with any other gasoline tested. Reports showed that even the premium priced fuels tested did not equal Blue Sunoco's performance.

These facts should convince you that Blue Sunoco deserves a test in your car against any motor fuel, at any price . . . Get your trial tankful today.



This novel method of refueling was used in the record-breaking flight of 106 hrs. and 6 min. The old record was 63 hrs. and 54 min. The plane was piloted by Merrill Phoenix and Harold F. Allen. Exclusive of aviators and fuel, the ship weighed 453 lbs.

A.F. OF L. TURNS DOWN ATTACKS ON NEW DEAL

Sidetracks Report Declaring Present Administration Leads to Socialism.

(By International News Service)

HOUSTON, Tex.—In a brief, hot session, rank and file delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention today sidetracked a report of their powerful resolutions committee which declared that under the present administration America was drifting into socialism.

What amounted to a rebellion in the ranks quickly developed on the floor after resolutions committee Chairman Matthew Woll asked delegates to vote favorably on the scorching report, which raked New Deal laws from stem to stern and called on labor to put a stop to current trends before this nation "ceased to be a democracy."

So hot did the debate become, and so strong the protest against the report, that even President Green joined in demand to pigeonhole the document.

Pleas Unheeded.

Opposition mounted fast, and despite pleas by Woll and committee Secretary John P. Frey, the delegates furiously upset the program of the resolutions committee.

Rejection of a resolutions committee report is not unprecedented, but occurs so rarely as to constitute a major outcry by the rank and file against dominant American Federation of Labor leaders.

Technically, the report was referred to the executive council of the federation for study, on motion of Delegate William McSorley of Cleveland, but actually it was the end of the report for this convention.

The personal feud between President Green and CIO Chairman John L. Lewis flared to fiery heat today, with Green accusing Lewis of "fraud" and "grandiose gestures." The Green attack was the federation president's answer to Lewis' offer to resign his CIO chairmanship for the good of labor if Green would quit his A. F. of L. post.

Lewis made his move in reply to the A. F. of L. CIO resolution, which declared that the two rival factions in organized labor could never be reunited until John Lewis was removed from CIO leadership. First advised of the Lewis statement, Green had no comment, explained the annual federation election of officers would give Lewis his answer, presumably in re-election of existing officers. Later in the day, however, he issued a prepared statement, saying in part:

"His (Lewis') offer is an attempted fraud and deception of the public.

"Here is a man who has ruthlessly vetoed every fair proposal to restore peace in organized labor, who has even refused to sit down again in conference without prior commitments to seek the kind of labor peace which everyone in this nation wants, now trying to mislead the public with an empty gesture."

WINS ON APPEAL

Mansfielder Granted $2,125 Damages by Supreme Court.

Reversing a Richland county common pleas court decision, the Ohio supreme court today had ruled that Miss Helen Beer, Mansfield, can collect $2,125 damages from the Buckeye Union Casualty company, Columbus, for injuries she suffered in an automobile accident here four years ago.

Miss Beer first obtained the judgment against her brother, Wilbur G. Beer, who was driving the car in which she was injured. Unable to collect, she then named the insurance firm party defendant in the suit, since it had issued a liability policy to her brother.

The county court refused to hold the insurance company liable for payment of the damage judgment. Miss Beer obtained the judgment on the grounds that she had purchased gasoline used in her brother's car to make a trip to Columbus, thereby making her a paying passenger.

The case had been argued in courts for more than three years.

TRAIL KILLER

Bloodhounds Hunt Man Who Attacked Couple In Car.

RUSTON, La. — (AP) — Sheriff Bryan Thigpen used bloodhounds today in an attempt to trail a man he said killed a young man and clubbed his woman companion last night as they sat in a parked automobile three miles east of here.

The woman was tentatively identified as a waitress, about 20 years old, of Jonesboro, La., south of here. The sheriff said he was not sure of the identity of the man.

SAWYER BLASTS BRICKER TALKS

Says CIO Organization Writes Foes Speeches; Bricker Calls for 'Purge.'

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Accusing John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for governor, of having a CIO organizer write some of his speeches while he criticizes the CIO severely, Charles Sawyer, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, left Cincinnati today for appearances in central and northern Ohio.

Sawyer made three speeches in Cincinnati yesterday as the city celebrated the 150th anniversary of the Northwest territory. He pictured Bricker's unopposed nomination as "the very picture of one-man control."

On the other hand he lauded the Democratic platform, which, he said, assured labor a square deal as well as the farmer, businessman and any other persons, adding:

"When I am governor I will see that the beneficiaries of old age pensions get their checks and get them on time."

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Moving to Cleveland today where he was to address a Knights of Columbus dinner tonight, John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for governor, left with Lebanan Republicans the message that the G. O. P could "do the job in Ohio."

He charged at a Republican rally attended by 3,000 that the Democrats coppied the Republican platform and called for a purge of the highway department and advocated the ousting of political middlemen.

Gubernatorial Candidate to Be in Ashland Saturday.

ASHLAND — Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor, will make his first appearance in Ashland county, since the campaign opened, on Saturday at 8:30 p. m. on the Ashland courthouse steps. He was scheduled to appear at the Ashland county fair and the Loudonville fair, but a change in plans made it necessary for him to cancel these appearances.

Roe Wolfe, chairman of the Ashland County Democratic committee, has been notified by James G Dunton, director of the Speakers' bureau of the Democratic State Executive committee that Sawyer will speak at 8.30 p. m.

GERMANY SEEKS U. S. TRADE PACT

Abundant Supply of Raw Materials Leads to Quest For Treaty.

BERLIN—(AP)—America's abundant supply of raw materials is leading Germany to seek a trade agreement possibly involving barter, with the United States.

Economists said today the German market easily could absorb 4,000,000 bales of cotton and large quantities of metals, finished goods, wheat, lard, canned meat and fruit which the United States could supply.

Walter Funk, German economies minister, said in Ankara Turkey last night that he would start trade negotiations with America upon his return to Berlin.

ITALY WARNS BRITAIN, FRANCE ON 'PREVENTIVE WAR' HOPES

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Italy today warned French and British enemies of Fascism against nourishing hopes of a "preventive war" against Italy and Germany after the Munich accord dismembering Czechoslovakia.

An official "diplomatic information," believed written by Premier Mussolini himself, gave "unconditional approval" to Chancellor Hitler's speech at Saarbruecken Sunday.

Hitler said Germany wanted peace but continued to rearm because "there are those abroad who do not want peace."

A "preventive war" is wanted, said today's Italian statement, by groups and parties in France and Britain "led everywhere by Jews."

"Now, in timely form, the fuehrer has directed the attention of the German people and also of the world to the activities of these groups and parties which favor a preventive war against Italy and Germany, and none the less opportunely he made clear that Germany is not letting herself be chloroformed and, it is noted in Rome, neither is Italy.

"Responsible Roman circles point out that mongers of a preventive war now are late. In their blind hate they may still dream of a preventive war, but attempting it would mean for them a supreme risk . . ."

Resume Negotiations.

KOMAROM, CZECHOSLOVAK-HUNGARIAN FRONTIER —(U.P.)—Delegations negotiating the Czechoslovak - Hungarian border dispute reassembled today.

Discussions had become deadlocked yesterday after the Czechoslovak delegation had agreed to cede Hungary all areas where Hungarian populations predominated, but refuse to accept the Hungarians' pre-war ethnographical map as the basis for negotiations. The Czechoslovaks demanded that the Hungarian majorities be decided upon the basis of a 1930 map.

The Hungarian demands had included lands south of a line between Bratislava and Uzhorod. This line, 250 miles long, runs from end to end of the province of Slovakia and below it lies one third of the Slovakion territory. Czechs refused to accept the terms.

A "symbolic" occupation of two zones of Czechoslovakia by Hungarian troops yesterday, agreed to in advance by the Czechs, did little to restore the harmony among the delegations here.

Gideon Browdem was accused of wielding a butcher knife in the kitchen of the Osborne farm, cutting LaFatch, who was "peacemaker" between the brothers The brothers were arguing over a football game and Gideon was alleged to have attacked Loren Browdem with the knife.

LaFatch and others interfered and received the cut while trying to separate them

POSTAL PROJECT HERE UNCHANGED

Treasury Takes No Action on Proposed $180,000 Addition.

While dispatches from Washington today said that the Treasury department had advertised for postoffice sites in eight Ohio cities, the status of the Mansfield postoffice project remained unchanged.

No further effort has been made to purchase the property of the Mansfield Mutual Fire Insurance company, 43 West Fourth street, which is adjacent to the present postoffice and for which the Treasury department has already made offers.

Engineers from the federal department said some time ago that the building of the proposed addition, at a total cost of approximately $180,000, would get under way before Feb 1, 1939

Crestline has been allocated $75,000 from federal funds for a postoffice building there.

U. S. INFORMED RUSSIA BOOSTS FRONTIER GUARD

Builds 'No Man's Land' on Western Border to Protect Wheat, Mining Belt.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Reliable reports that the Soviet Union is hastening construction of a vast artificial no-man's-land along its western frontier as a first line of defense against Germany have reached diplomatic circles here.

The information is that the Soviets, seeing the collapse of their efforts to forge an international barricade eastward around Germany, virtually have dropped everything else in order to protect the Ukrainian wheat and coal fields from any invasion.

Draft 6-Ply Program.

A six-point program designed to slow down and finally halt an approaching army has been dovetailed into natural defenses of distance and lack of communications. It is reported here to include:

1. Deforestation of a belt ranging from a few to a hundred miles wide between the Soviet Union and her neighbors of Rumania, Poland and Estonia.

2. Depopulation of this zone, and in some cases resettlement of evacuated towns and farms with trusted Red army men and women, ostensibly posing as peasants and workers while guarding the frontiers and checking illegal entry.

3. Destruction or mining of transportation arteries, including bridges, roads and railroads, running through this buffer zone.

4. Construction of a formidable "maginot line" along the eastern boundary of this quarantine belt, into which reserve stores are being rushed and fortifications built.

5. Speeding up of railroad and highway building behind this line to facilitate transfer of supplies and troops.

6. Development back of this area of big military concentration centers, together with well fortified and provisioned air bases. These would support the Russian air force, whose duty would be to harass the enemy not only throughout the buffer zone but before it actually reached Soviet frontiers.

Reports here are that the Bolsheviks also are extending their no-man's belt to include distant frontiers with Finland, Persia and Afghanistan, which also are being drawn into the general defense system.

BRADLEY PLANS RADIO SPEECHES

Ohio Senate Graft Witness Won't Mention Davey.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Lee Bradley of Cleveland, the Ohio senate's ace witness in a graft-hunting inquiry last winter, said in a statement today he would begin shortly before the Nov. 8 election a series of broadcasts and give "some facts that are not usually known to the average voters."

Bradley declined to say who would sponsor the broadcasts. He was charged with libel by Gov. Martin L. Davey after the senate inquiry, but a Cuyahoga county grand jury refused to indict Bradley. The self-styled, one-time Davey political contact man said the governor would not be mentioned in his talks.

WOMAN'S GARB FOOLS THIEF

Policeman's Masquerade Helps Him Capture Suspect.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Max Goldstein passed his 51st birthday in custody of suburban Shaker Heights police today because Patrolman Charles Nunn's masquerade as a woman was convincing.

The slender officer reported that Goldstein snatched a purse he carried near which several women recently were slugged and robbed.

Nunn, one-time professional football player, seized the man but the latter broke away. The officer fired his revolver six times "in warning" but the fugitive sped on.

"So I pulled my skirts up to my waist, caught him and let him have it," said Nunn.

WIFE SHOOTS MATE

TOLEDO — (U.P.) — Police were told today that George Knight, 62, was shot in the chest by his wife, Harriett, during an argument over removal of a picture of Mrs. Knight's mother.

Association Meets—The Mansfield Public Parks association meets at 7:30 p. m. today at Prospect park with the city Garden clubs to discuss a WPA parks project, Roy C. Vaughn, president, announced.

ASHLAND FORUM HEARS KRAMER

Mansfield Attorney Informs Audience Democracy Now Faces a Crisis.

ASHLAND—Democracy is facing a crisis, not only in Europe but in the United States, according to Attorney John Kramer of Mansfield, who addressed the junior-senior forum on the subject "Is Democracy Facing a Crisis?" at Tuesday morning's chapel hour.

This was the second of the two forum lectures which precede next week's forum discussions on this subject by the juniors and seniors under faculty leadership.

Prior to 1920, democracy was thought of as a form of government set up against monarchy, but now it is thought of as opposed to dictatorship, Attorney Kramer said in opening his talk. After the World war, democracies sprang up all over Europe, but after 20 years we find dictatorships emerging as the most powerful forces in Europe, he said. Russia he classed as the most complete dictatorship in Europe, though it is called a communistic form of government.

"Dictators act first and inquire afterwards. That gives them the advantage of fast action regardless of what others think of them. Seizure of Ethiopia is an example of dictatorship action," declared Kramer.

Commenting on the Czechoslovakian situation, the speaker stated that democracy has been betrayed in Europe, with dismemberment of this country to suit the whim of a dictator. In less than a year Germany will have all of Czechoslovakia, he said.

"Democracies in Europe have lost their prestige in the past two weeks. Hitler is now telling England wher to head in," he said.

The rally will be held in the high school auditorium and Harvey D. Ulmer, chairman of the Crawford county executive committee, will preside.

UNIQUE PRISON

Convicts in Pennsy 'Alcatraz' to Live Like 'Goldfish.'

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Plans were complete today for construction of a Pennsylvania "Alcatraz" a unique prison where inmates will live — like goldfish — under constant but secret surveillance of guards.

Most outstanding among the prison design changes will be a network of secret observation tiers or "cat-walks," spreading like a great spider web over all the prison buildings and cell ranges. From these guards will be enabled to see the inmates at all times, but remain unseen.

Single-story cell blocks, designed to accommodate 600 "lifers" and dangerous convicts, will be air conditioned and well-lighted. Only one convict will be assigned to a cell.

GALION — A son was born Tuesday afternoon at Good Samaritan hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William Carlin of Allen street.

OFFICIALS GET BOILER PROTEST

Trades Council Says City Hall Endangered While Firemen Operators Are Absent.

Criticism directed at the operation of steam boilers at city hall, filed with the civil service commission by Mansfield trade unions today had been referred to city officials.

In a letter to Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist and city council, George Biddle, secretary of the commission, explained the complaint which the commission had received.

He pointed out that the complaint said "the city building, contents and lives are endangered" while city firemen, who are employed as part-time boiler operators are absent answering fire calls.

The complaint, Biddle said, was lodged by a committee from the Mansfield Trades council and the Mansfield Building Trades council, consisting of B. M. Ferguson, Clarence Fike and L. E. Leaman, and local 614 operating engineers of Mansfield.

They based their complaint on the fact that the two firemen were not available for full time duty.

The boilers which furnish steam for the city hall have been cared for by the city firemen from Central station since the building was erected 13 years ago.

City council in May, 1937, created the position of part-time engineer for one fireman with a pay increase of $23.50 a month. Last December two firemen were employed to work alternate shifts in connection with their duties on the fire department in tending the boiler. Council granted an increase of $25 per month for both men who were required to have a fireman or engineer's license.

HORSE KILLED, RIDERS ESCAPE

Animals Plunge Into Pool Charged With Electricity.

AMARILLO, Tex.—(AP)—M. C. Hancock and W. B. Harris, riding horseback, decided to cut through a pool of water.

Their horses stumbled and fell dead in the pool. Hancock and Harris were thrown to the ground.

Only by the inches separating them from the water did they miss death.

Both horses had been electrocuted. The pool was charged by a broken electric wire.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1938.

Some of our pick-a-back industries are doing pretty well lately.

A traveler reports men living in trees in New Guinea. Apparently the original tree-sitters.

Sometimes comes to mind the old story. Query: "Do you want work?" Reply: "Not if I can find anything else to do."

Merited Honors.

TWO brief news items, appearing on the same day, bespoke work well done by Mansfielders and served to carry the name of Mansfield afar.

One story told of the election of Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the Mansfield reformatory, to the board of directors of the American Prison association. The other related that Earl A. McFarland had been appointed to the post of deputy supreme dictator of the Moose lodge for the western Ohio district.

Both are well-merited honors. Glattke has won praise for his work at the reformatory, despite the fact that in years of experience as a penologist, he is practically a newcomer. McFarland has long been active in fraternal work, and has held high office.

Both, we are sure, will perform their new duties creditably. And Mansfield will share in the credit, because it is the city from which they hail.

Coat-tail riding, perhaps, but of a pleasant kind.

Recuperation.

THE BIG WAR recently threatened is over, for a while at least, before it started. So much to the good.

"With war clouds lifted, the chief brake on business recovery has been released," says a statement from the Federation of Labor.

Now if the war clouds were lifted between two big labor groups, as President Roosevelt suggests, there would be another brake loosened.

And if there could be a truce between government and business for a year or so, recovery would get a magnificent start. It doesn't have to be a formal, signed truce, either. The way to stop fighting is to stop fighting, and give this nation's natural recuperative powers a chance to operate.

Sensible Spending Is Necessary.

THE man who spends less than his means would normally dictate, is as much of a burden on the country as the man who continually spends more than he can afford. This country possesses an almost limitless market for commodities of all kinds.

We need more homes, more cars, more roads, more farm and factory machinery, more clothing, more labor-saving devices in home and industry. It is purchases of things such as these that make new jobs, new purchasing power, higher national income, and greater opportunity for both capital and labor.

Spend wisely and frugally. Keep your budget balanced. Don't get yourself in the hole. But always remember that sound spending is vital to the maintenance of our standard of living, to the advancement of recovery, and to the ultimate attainment of prosperity.

110,000 Victims of Politics.

THERE was a time, just before the Ohio primaries, when old-age pensioners were receiving letters telling them that their welfare was one of the chief concerns of Governor Martin L. Davey, and that he had been responsible for many of the things that had been done for them. The letters, of course, came from Governor Davey.

Now, with the federal social security board holding up the federal share of the pension allotments, because it finds the Ohio division of aid for the aged being improperly run, Governor Davey quite typically forgets those pensioners who were once his chief concern, and engages in a fantastic verbal battle with the federal authority.

They are, he says, simply making a political issue out of the situation—in an effort to blacken the Davey name. He seemingly is willing to let the aged pensioners of Ohio get along on just half of their usual pension payments rather than comply with the demands of the federal board.

There can be no objection to arguing for a principle, but if Mr. Davey was entirely truthful when he spoke of his great concern for the welfare of the state's indigent aged, he would sacrifice his shallow argument of "politics" as he jousts with the federal office, and make the required changes in the pension system.

Shall 110,000 Ohioans be deprived of their meager but rightful pensions for the sake of an argument that is certainly trivial—and perhaps one that the governor will have difficulty in successfully defending?

Proud Town.

CADIZ, O., a community of less than 3,000 people, wins a prize offered by a Hollywood star to "the proudest small town in America." Cadiz bases its pride on having given the world such natives as Clark Gable, film star; Gen. George A. Custer and Gen. Thomas M. Vincent, war heroes; Mary Jobe Akely, educator; John A. Bingham, and Edwin M. Stanton, statesman; W. H. Holmes, archeologist; Percy Hammond, critic; Bishop Matthew Simpson and Lynn Harold Hough, clergymen.

Some of these people are widely known; others are not. It will be agreed, however, that the list speaks very well for so small a place. Now we shall doubtless have rivals all over the land getting into the game and trotting out their favorite sons and daughters.

It is a worthy form of emulation, which should stimulate ambitious young people and take some of the undeserved stigma from small towns. Mere numerical size is no sign of greatness and confers no distinction on citizens.

The present form of civic pride, however, should work both ways. It is right for Cadiz to be proud of its famous offspring, but it is also important for them to be proud of Cadiz. In any case like this, shrewd observers will want to know whether the greatness has all been drained out of the town, leaving it decadent, or whether it is still producing fine people.

Keeping Step

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The reason military experts expect Hitler to become dissatisfied with his present situation is—oil.

Careful computation of Germany's domestic oil production places it at an outside limit of 2,000,000 tons annually. In a war, that amount even if available all at one time, would last Germany six to eight weeks. Military sources quoted from abroad estimate Germany's war time consumption would be 12,000,000 tons as a minimum and possibly 20,000,000 tons. At present Germany can buy from the United States and Mexico. In event of war with England those sources would be cut off by blockade. Then what?

That question explains why every German move is interpreted by military observers as directed toward gaining access to the Rumanian oil fields, one of the world's best. That field could not be cut off from Germany by the British navy.

Could Make It, But—.

IT IS one of the sorrows of Central Europe that despite its wealth in iron, coal and food, it has almost no natural oil resources. There is little in Sudetenland, taken from Czechoslovakia. Germany has employed its most skilled scientists to make fuel oil from coal but has been only moderately successful. The fuel can be supplied but it would take an army behind the lines to make fuel for an army in the field. The consumption of coal in making the oil would rob other industries almost equally important in war time.

Just how long Germany could continue to fight on without an adequate supply of fuel oil is problematical. In the World war she got along very well for four years with her major supply sources cut off. Since then, motorization of armies has proceeded rapidly. Germany's principal striking weapon, the air force, would be grounded without oil. And one of the disappointments of synthetic oil is that it is not satisfactory for airplanes.

* * *

A Reserve Horsepower.

CONSUMPTION of oil in other motorized wings of the army is much greater even than in the air. Germany boasts of the fast striking power of her motorized armies. Yet its military chiefs have recognized the crippling possibilities of a shortage of oil by retaining a considerable body of horse cavalry and horse artillery.

Nothing much ever is said about this particular wing of the service. It is known among military men to be Germany's ace in the hole against a time when fuel no longer would be available and the fighting and hauling would have to be done with horses which could be fed from the countryside.

Access to the Rumanian oil fields would solve Germany's oil problem. Rumania ranks fourth among the great oil producing countries. It now produces 10,500,000 tons annually and could be expanded. It would be a long haul from Rumania to the western front or to a Russian front but the Danube provides a water route and railroads another.

The battle for the Rumanian oil fields might transfer the major war front far to the East. In that event, England and France would be hard pressed to defend them from capture—unless Russia should step in as an ally. And Russia seems to be cooling off toward France since the Czechoslovak affair.

A HARD ONE TO CRACK

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C. HILL

I HAVE an idea that news desks will be digging stories out of Henry L. Stoddard's new book, "It Costs to Be President," for some time to come. Mr. Stoddard, for 25 years owner and editor of the New York Evening Mail, will be long remembered as one of the top-flight political reporters in America. He has known every president since Garfield, in close relations with many of them, and before Garfield he knew Grant and Hayes.

This book and his previous book, "As I Knew Them," have vastly enriched that section of our historic archives bearing the presidency. They also have humanized and personalized for our view the men of the White House—lonely and sad men, most of them, under crushing burdens.

This is the main emphasis of Mr. Stoddard's story, the punishing ordeal of the presidency, but the title is inadequate, in that it fails to suggest the vast store of interesting, and much of it historically important, reminiscence bearing on critical turns of the lives and careers of the presidents, and on momentous events in our political history. I can think only of M. Blowitz's "Memoirs of a Journalist," in this field, as comparable in intrinsic interest and importance as a backward look over fateful years.

* * *

I had known Mr. Stoddard at many political conventions in past years, always acutely conscious that here was a man who could make the rest of us look foolish if he wrote one-half of what he knew. When his new book came to my desk, I visited him at his office, overlooking City Hall Park. The view from his window encompassed the scene of his more than 50 years of brilliant achievement in his craft—of which he is one of the elder statesmen, a newspaperman's newspaperman, with still unflagging zeal for news as such, for faithful, clear objective reporting.

We talked of old times, and of that amazing and characteristically American drama of the national convention. And, of course, of the men who won and the men who lost in the tourneys where the presidency was the golden prize—an apple of dust, to some, always all but overwhelming in its demands on the endurance of the winner, but forever sought and sometimes sought again by those who knew its most severe tribulations.

* * *

I asked Mr. Stoddard what he thought about the "great man," theory of history, as against the theory of events being shaped by impersonal forces. He cited a chapter in his book called "Chance Controls It All."

"One cannot be an observer of politics and statesmanship over a long period," he said, "without concluding that much of 'manifest destiny,' in the lives of both individuals and nations is chance and chance only. Considering the intricacies of politics, as they converge at a national convention, the delicate balances of power between rival groups, the deals, maneuvering and complexities of national politics, it is inevitable that much 'just happens.' That is part of the story in my book. Time and again, I have seen some tense situation resolved, some man set on the road to the presidency, by some occurrence which seemed as uncontrolled and as unpredictable as the toss of a coin.

"I am narrowing my answer to your question to what seems definitely observable as a political reporter. In a philosophy of history, you may search out more remote causes, and underlying patterns of events, but this I have not attempted to do, as it seemed to me that the primary interest of anything I might write would lie in an amplification of work as newspaperman, whose function it is to write what he sees and not what he thinks."

* * *

Mr. Stoddard found Taft and Hoover the two presidents endowed with the most alert sense of humor. Hoover, he said, is an extraordinarily gifted story-teller. The best executive, in his opinion, was Calvin Coolidge, who had learned the first rule of the competent boss—assigning work to the proper departments and not trying to do it all himself. In reply to my question as to the most trying ordeal of the presidency, he said:

"Disillusionment; the pressure of self-seeking politicians from all sides; the discovery of selfishness and greedy ambition in men supposedly disinterested."

I have withheld an account of the bumper crop of fresh news stories to be gleaned in this book. It is one of those "now it can be told" narratives. It is told with the fine clarity and simplicity of an ace newspaperman, with professional detachment and without disparagement to men not Mr. Stoddard's political faith. I know of no book in years which so aptly combines net reader interest with substance for the serious student of our political history.

What It Means:

Diplomacy In the Open.

—By MILO THOMPSON

WASHINGTON — A feeling is growing in Washington circles that it was not primarily four men at Munich, or a British prime minister rushing by air to the doorstep of Hitler, or appeals by neutrals for peace under the leadership of President Roosevelt, that averted war.

It was just as much, or more, the development which made all these things possible: modern communications and journalism, and back of that the inventive genius which made this efficency possible.

The increased availability of improved communication facilities is the chief difference between 1914, when war was not averted, and 1938, when, under similar circumstances, it was. Never before this time were diplomatic gestures so instantly known, arguments so speedily disseminated and covenants so openly arrived at.

* * *

The difference is even more striking when one compares the events of 1938 with the times when Germany's Iron Chancellor Bismarck, by diplomatic methods devious and secret, confident of the right of Germanic might, welded together a German empire.

But it is not necessary to go beyond 1914. At that time, as Mr. David Lloyd George of Great Britain once said, "No one at the head of affairs quite meant war. It was something into which they glided, or rather staggered and stumbled, perhaps through folly; and a discussion, I have no doubt, would have averted it."

There was plenty of discussion in 1914, as a matter of fact, but it did not circulate fast enough to overtake the onrush of the flames of patriotic passion.

The flow of publicized communications testified to the existence of a new and influential public opinion about war and peace, even in 1914. Nations found it desirable to appeal to that public opinion for moral support.

* * *

In 1938 such appeals had become not only desirable but practically imperative. The peoples of the world were avidly seeking information they knew could reach them and leaders could not well deny it to them. Their representatives were at every diplomatic door, observing, waiting, reporting—by wire and air.

Not only did the 1938 public insist on being able to read, immediately after delivery, the texts of speeches and diplomatic documents, but it wanted to hear the voices of the speakers on its radio receivers and to see how they appeared when they spoke.

In the Czechoslovak incident, after it had become a probable cause of general war, diplomacy nearly reached for the first time the ideal President Woodrow Wilson expressed in the first of his 14 points: "Diplomacy shall proceed always frankly and in the public view."

But mechanical development did not serve the cause of peace merely by creating the pressures of public opinion. It gave wings to the negotiators. Airliners had not been so perfected in 1914 that a prime minister could step into one and be whisked into the presence of a chancellor safely and in a matter of hours. Long distance telephone communication had not been so perfected that a Mussolini could call a Hitler in a matter of moments; talk with him as easily as if he were in the same room and agree upon a pause and a procedure.

* * *

Perfected cable transmission expedited data from ambassadors and ministers to their home governments and facilitated quick communication between the leaders of interested governments.

The loud speaker, the vacuum tube, the gas engine and wirephoto were as much the big four of Munich as Chamberlain, Hitler, Mussolini and Daladier.

A Farmer's Diary

The Bee Tree.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I VISITED a familiar farm some distance from where I live. I always like to see these fields because they produce less crops than any other farm in this county. A negative distinction, yet I love the stream that flows through the meadow, the proud old elm that stands along the bluff, the makeshift old worm fences that border every impoverished field.

I asked the youthful tenant's permission to go up to the depleted woodlot. As I followed along the old, accustomed path, I saw clumps of blackberry bushes growing short and others dying from improper nourishment.

At the farther corner of the woods I heard, at short intervals, the sound of honey bees that were not leisurely seeking honey, but returning, loaded, from some distant point. I watched more closely and not five feet away, I saw a line of bees entering and leaving near the base of a red oak tree.

Here in this forsaken wild, where poverty is near, the bees bear sweetness and the birds exult in song. The gentle breeze whispers across the treetops, and the rarest wild flowers bloom along the fencerow.

I stood for several minutes, watching the moving stream of life, and concluded it must be a strong, thrifty colony. The trunk was large, and must have held a huge cavern, for so many bees.

Twelve feet above the ground the heavy winds had cracked the outer shell, and I saw honey oozing out and dropping from a splinter to the ground. I selected a sharp pointed branch, and from a distance, held the end to the dripping sliver, to sample the glistening sweetness. It tasted like dandelion. I tried it several times, until I had enough.

As I left, I mentally marked the spot, but did not tell the tenant of my find. Winter is coming fast. I know the bees will have ample food till flowers bloom again in spring.

Listen, World!

You're Not Like That—Really.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Those wretched rages that suddenly flare up within you, scorching, searing, shrivelling everything that is tender and lovely in your nature . . .

Those sudden black fogs of suspicions and dislike, or despair . . .

Those quick, bitter judgments and swift impulses of hate and cruelty . . .

Are they really necessary—really YOU? Do they express your honest feelings?

At the moment, they seem to. But afterwards, looking back, you puzzle over them, don't you? What made you do that amazing thing—say those vicious words? Why were you so angry—so disgusted — so outraged? Why? Why?

* * *

You can't remember! But, at the time, it seemed so important! And it has possibly left a great gap in your life. Yet now it all seems unreal. It WAS unreal. Nine-tenths of your—of all your human—hysteria is unreal. We don't do the things we do because we want to do them—because we honestly feel like doing them. We do them because we have been taught that they are the proper things to do.

From our earliest awakening we are taught that nice people, smart people, strong, good people feel in certain ways about certain things. We are taught this is countless ways, by sermons and punishment — by watching the things that happen to other people and the things that happen to ourselves—until at last we accept as Truth.

We do not think about it any more. It has become a part of our unconscious attitude toward life, and we act upon it as involuntarily as we breathe or wink.

* * *

And yet all the time we may be acting a lie. All the time we may be doing something which we do not feel, something which we have no realistic wish to do.

D. H. Lawrence, that tragic, tangled genius, put it all in one sentence. Those cruel quarrels between himself and the woman he loved—hideous brawls that went on for days, leaving them both broken in flesh and spirit. After they were over, they seemed so unnecessary.

They didn't hate each other, didn't want to hurt each other, really. But there were those false ideas deep in both of them, as there are in all of us—false ideas about how they should feel and what they should do and they could not seem to break free from that falsity.

"So many of our feelings are illusions!" he cried. "We don't really have them . . . we might all be a great soothing and support to one another."

* * *

There was the truth. His own life might have been so different if he could have lived it—if he and Frieda could have said and done only those things which they really felt, instead of endless, foolish, irritable things based on false pride, false fear, false resentment.

And that it is true of all of us. It we would only do and say those things we honestly feel. But we're afraid people will laugh at us, or snub us, or put something over on us. And so, like baa-a-aing sheep, away we go, without law or reason—wasting our own lives trampling on others!

What idiots!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Here's a survey of women in the New York news—it's all about blonds, brunets, redheads, covering everything from the arts to dish-washing:

Among the architectural victims of the recent hurricane was the home of Katherine Hepburn's father, at Saybrook, Conn. It was tossed a mile by the tempestuous winds and completely demolished . . . Mary Treeholm, a hat-check girl in a Manhattan night club, has sold a manuscript to a publisher based on "what a hat-check girl sees." It's supposed to be mildly sensational . . . Almost 40 per cent of Broadway press-agents are women . . . Among them you will find such names as Helen Deutsch, Elise Chisholm, Phyllis Perlman, Constance Hope, Jean Dalyrimple, Dorothy Ross, Dorothy Kay, and Hazel Flynn.

* * *

Lynn Fontanne is not listed among those who believe that absence makes the heart grow fonder. This Australian-born actress attributes the success of her marriage to Alfred Lunt to the fact that they have never been separated . . . Mrs. Irving Berlin, the former Ellin Mackay, is a fiction writer . . . Katherine Brush decorates the walls of her studio with photographs of pugilistic casualties . . . She's an arden fight fan.

George Jean Nathan thinks Pualani Mossman, Hawaiian dancer at the Lexington, is the most graceful dancer in New York . . . There are a lot of other people who have the same idea . . . On a recent survey of married women, five out of 18 listed their careers as "marriage," because they dislike the term "housewife."

* * *

Dawn Powell's new novel is "The Happy Island," a study of life in New York. She's the midwest lass who wrote the play "Jigsaw" . . . Maxine Elliott long has lived in a great, wierdly constructed chateau of African architecture on the Riviera, but she is not forgotten on Broadway . . . There are four portraits of her in the theater bearing her name . . . Helen Neil, widow of Edward J. Neil, war correspondent killed in Spain, is doing publicity work with the Columbia broadcasting company.

Mary Pickford invariably introduces Buddy Rogers to guests as "My Husband" . . Judith Anderson and her two daschunds are inseparable . . . They accompany her to parties, on shopping excursions, to the theater, indeed everywhere—on a leash . . . Three of New York's jiu jitsu experts are women, although I can't pronounce their names, much less spell them.

* * *

The manager of a models' agency informs me that his charges receive double pay when asked to pose in lingerie, although frequently this inducement isn't sufficient to gain their consent. He had in mind a recent incident in which a lass was asked to pose in a certain type of slip for a large mail-order catalog.

"Oh, I couldn't do that," cried the young woman, "my folks would be horrified."

"But they'd never see it," insisted the manager. "This catalog doesn't appear in New York. It's circulated in the sticks."

"That's just it," moaned the lass. "That's where all my folks are—in the sticks."

And she didn't pose either, double pay notwithstanding.

Timely Editorial

Dizzy Days.

Viewing the present-day trend and endeavor to get something for nothing, it appears that the ultimate object is for everyone to live without working. Of course this is an impossibility, but economic fallacies have gained such strong foothold in the past six years of experiment and political chicanery that the country will probably have to go through with the whole ruinous program before it can be convinced that Utopian theories are unworkable.

There was the Huey Long "share the wealth" plan which died aborning. There still is the Townsend $200 a month dream, and more recently the "$30 every Thursday" brain-storm. There is the President's redistribution of wealth policy which helped bring on the recession, and now there is advocacy of a 30-hour week.

The theory is that by reducing the working week to five six-hour days, without any cut in pay, new jobs will be created for the unemployed.

Imposition of the 30-hour week would ruin many businesses and serve to make the unemployment problem worse.—Ohio State Journal.

As Others See It

Voice Of Experience.

The proud young man thinks he has his education when he leaves college with his diploma, but his real education begins when he loses his first job—Kansas City Times.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. What is said to be the oldest food of man?
2. What is canebrake?
3. Where is the island of Majorca?

Words of Wisdom.

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—Hazlitt.

Hints on Etiquette.

If a woman meets a male acquaintance and stops to talk to him on a very cold day, she should suggest that he replace his hat on his head. Courtesy demands that he remove it when they meet and not resume it until they they go their separate ways. He may, however, ask permission to put it on.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Barley.
2. A dense growth of giant cane.
3. Off the coast of Spain, 130 miles south of Barcelona.

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER 17

Making her own way in the world was fine and challenging, Judy reflected swiftly. Serving Abbey Boland, who was preparing to marry a count, was something else again.

"Thank you, Ronald. You're a dear to think about me, but Abbey can get just as good a bargain in royal gentlemen without my help. I might coax her into marrying a good, sound American and she wouldn't like that."

"Do as you please, of course. Maybe your other offer is better."

Judy was reluctant to tell Ronald Birrell what her new job was going to be. She wondered at her own hesitation. He was not her guardian. He was just a red-headed young man, with friendly eyes, a good natured grin, a tongue that could be more than sarcastic in variance with that grin, and a disturbing way of making her adhere to his suggestions.

"Why shouldn't I tell him?" she admonished herself. Alone in the shadowy rooming house hall she threw her head high, tossed her auburn curls back with a flash of spirit, and said:

"I'm joining the Danceland crew."

"Say it again."

"Danceland — you know, the place where a man pays a dollar, encircles a girl's waist with a manly arm, and makes three trips around the floor while a swing band goes original."

"You are serious?"

"No—just afraid I might grow hungry waiting for a better job. I needn't talk to the rhythmic-footed gentlemen. I can take steps with them and then forget them."

"Judy, you're not taking that job!"

"Why not?"

"It will be on every front page tomorrow morning. Your picture, too. I thought you didn't want publicity."

"I don't, but no one I know comes to that place. I gave a fictitious name, so I'm safe as though I were in a row boat off a South Sea island."

"I'll call for you. I had an appointment but I'll try to break it."

"You'll do nothing of the sort. I'm keeping this engagement alone Run along and eat dinner with Abbey Boland or Marjorie or Mr. Heaton, and entertain them with the story of a girl who is dancing holes in her golden sandals. They'll love it."

"I'm meeting a financier to go over a case with him. He wouldn't be interested, Judy. But I'll drop by later in the evening."

By twelve o'clock it seemed to Judy that in all her life she never had been so tired. The pursuit of a job, from one agency to another, was a pleasant stroll compared to this endless rhythmic beat to which she must keep step. Some of the girls strolled away from the floor with their partners and sat out numbers. This she would not do. She was an automaton, hired to dance, and dance she would. Once she went into the dressing room, powered her tilted nose, noted that the summer's freckles had drifted away and her eyes were shadowed with weariness. She lifted her foot and looked at the fragile sole. It was smooth. She would have sworn it held a hole.

* * *

She had chosen the green frock and she noted the envious glances of a girl in a cheap flowered print. It was a pretty pattern, made with flounces, and a rose-velvet ribbon was knotted around the slender high waist. On an impulse Judy spoke.

"I've been wanting a flowered dress. We're about the same size. You don't by any chance want a green cloud chiffon, do you?"

"You want to trade?" The girl's voice was breathless. Her eyes shone as though a forbidden city had swung out of dark clouds "You can't mean it? That's so beautiful My dress was $7.89."

The girl said it tremulously, bravely. She would not cheat, not pretend to make an exchange which she knew was not fair.

"Have you worked here long?" asked Judy, unzipping her frock and pulling it over her slim, soft shoulders.

"One month. It's better than anything else I could get." She fumbled with the cheap fasteners on her gown. "Why do you want to trade?"

"I like your frock," Judy answered carelessly. She couldn't say: "Because your eyes looked like those of a little girl who didn't get a doll for Christmas; because you never have known the soft glory of real silk next to your skin; because I've always had dresses, too many dresses to wear, and you have to slave for just one; because I've been learning to save and share these last few weeks."

Later she was to realize the whole course of the next six months, maybe her life, would have been different if she had not made that gift

She had not observed that a young man was watching her keenly before she entered the dressing room Thus, she didn't miss him when she returned to the wall where the hostesses gathered when not on the floor.

The young man meantime was calling the paper that he represented.

"Bill? Say, Judy Rogers or her twin sister is acting as a hostess down at the Danceland gallery. Registered under a phoney name, of course. Might slip down a cameraman. She's wearing a lot

The reporter was not around her—he can't miss her . . ."

The reported was not around when the photographer arrived. He had hurried to his paper's library to look up data on Judy Rogers. The cameraman, young and inexperienced, read the hastily scribbled description of Judy which the night city editor had given him. He spied the dress He focused his camera and shot.

* * *

As he did so, Ronald Birrell entered the hall. Judy saw him coming, and started to meet him. She had not noticed what the photographer was doing. For all she knew he was making pictures for advertising material

She reached the boy with the camera a second later than Ronald.

"What's the racket?" she heard Ronald say.

"Taking a picture, that's all." He ignored the lawyer, focused the camera, shot again. Judy followed the line of vision. She saw the girl in her green dress smiling in pleasure at this sudden notoriety. Still she did not guess at the camera's mission.

Then Ronald saw her. He looked puzzled, as though something was wrong but he could not place it. It was her dress, of course. Being a man who dealt with legal briefs, football, and fishing rods, instead of the intricacies of the cut of a skirt or the width of a belt, he wouldn't know, Judy reflected.

"You're different," he said. "Not so—so right."

"Listen," she said. "I want to hear what the cameraman is telling the child in green. I traded dresses with her for fun—"

"You did! Oh, good grief, Judy." He dragged her by one hand to the spot where the girl was being questioned

"Blue eyes, brown hair, green dress," the reporter-photographer was writing down. "I guess you're the dame whose pictures we want."

"It will be in the paper?" the girl asked breathlessly. "Which one?"

"Run! Wait for me in the downstairs foyer," Ronald said to Judy in a terse whisper. She turned away, but she did not leave. She heard him say:

"Who do you think this girl is, sir?"

The boy ignored the intrusion. Ronald persisted. "What's the secret?"

The first reporter came back, eyes narrowed as he scanned the group around the camera.

"Okay, Pete, I got her," the picture-taker told him. "Here she is, ready to pose again if you want her Easy work."

"Where?" Pete asked. Then his eyes widened. "Holy smoke, Jeff, you've got the wrong girl! She isn't Judy Rogers any more than I'm Robert Taylor—"

Judy did not wait. She picked up the evening wrap she had worn and left. She reached the lower foyer to find Ronald ahead of her, searching for her.

"Like it?" he asked laconically.

"Goodness no!"

"You're out a dress."

"That was a gift. I wanted her to have it."

"Someone gave me my first good pair of trousers when I was 12. I didn't know, until then, you could buy them without patches. made from clean goods. I'll never forget." He chuckled at the memory.

Judy glanced at him curiously. It was difficult to remember that his link went back to a cabin on a Tennessee hillside, just a few miles removed from the comfortable houses in the valleys and the lower hills. Again she was impressed with the integrity, the honesty, the fearlessness of this man who seemed to be forever rescuing her. He would not let her down. Suddenly she knew that she did not want him to go out of her life. She did not love him. Marriage and romance were ended. There was a great waste within her, that was all.

But it would be good to have him as a friend where she might talk to him.

"If Abbey Boland would still like someone to help her with her count maybe I know a few of the tricks," she said presently.

Star Performer ushers in new Style Cycle with stunning designs that key-note next year's mode

IT all started with "catwalk-cooling," on the costly racing cars of Europe.

They were shooting at better aerodynamics, not new styling—but they touched off something that will re-pattern cars everywhere before it's done.

Not that looks alone ever come first with Buick. What's really Buick is underneath all that, down deep in the good true metals, the split-hair precisions, the tough alloys.

But everyone goes for beauty, and you would be less than human if you didn't thrill to an eyeful of the smartest dressed automobile you ever saw.

So let your gaze take it in.

Spot the radiator grilles . . . down low. They're the key to new-day design.

They're also placed where air pressure's greatest—your engine cools under forced draft!

Under that comely bonnet is the engine with more abundant life—that quick quiet Dynaflash valve-in-head straight-eight!

Under that roomy Body by Fisher are the great slow spirals of BuiCoil springing, to give you the true "full float" ride. And in that body, is new wide-paned visibility—up to 413 more square inches of glass.

The whole staunch, firm, beautiful car looks like what it is—a car to love and live with.

Come see it. Just as it stands there, tuned for your service, it seems to be ready to fly!

CRITICIZES ATTITUDE ON RECENT WAR SCARE

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, International President of Business and Professional Women, Speaks Here.

THE Mansfield-Leland hotel was the scene last night of the Business and Professional Women's annual public relations dinner. Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women and associate editor of Pictorial Review, was the guest speaker.

Speaking on the topic, "Strange New World," Miss Phillips pointed out the changing of standards, idealism, and concepts of right and wrong. While talking of the recent Czechoslovakian crisis she said, "What may go down in history as the bitterest, basest betrayal of our generation was welcomed because it saved us and our national assets. Perhaps it is wise to say it seemed to save us, for it does not yet appear what the end will be."

Her discussion definitely condemned the unemployment or "made work" situation, and the closing of educational opportunities throughout this country.

In conclusion Miss Phillips said, "But something must happen to the soul of America before her economic ills are cured. America must again recapture idealism, must be galvanized into passionate conviction. America needs imagination and perspective. Eyes must catch a vision more cosmic than individual investments or the power of a political party. America must lift again its spiritual grail."

Arrangements for the affair were made by Miss Georgiana Chidsey, general chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. Falsom Teeter, Mrs. Maud Vail, Bernice Swinehart, Mabel Selfe, Mary Foos and Rachel Dengler. Music by the glee club preceded the lecture which was attended by 200 persons.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Sunny Disposition Means Joy

One of a Series.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
(Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes Marriage Successful?

The first essential of a happy marriage is a good disposition.

Please don't think I'm advocating a yes-yes, namby-pamby life partner who hasn't enough personality to blow up into a good storm occasionally. An occasional storm isn't a bad thing for clearing the domestic atmosphere. But these storms should be spaced plenty for apart.

The husband or wife who indulges in such long-spaced disturbances is a different creature from the one whose temper is of the hairtrigger variety, one which explodes at the least touch. There's no peace in a house where the temper of husband and wife is set on a quick fuse.

If father has one of those slight-pressure, explosive temperaments, you can detect it in the way the wife has of moving about as if she were dodging shots.

A husband of this type may be a good provider. He may have intervals of charm, kindliness and devotion but you can't count on him. The highly mechanized trigger and secondary trigger, on which his temper is set, goes off as if it were demonstrating its terrible efficiency.

The girl with the hair-trigger temper is more of a menace to happy marriage than a husband with the same quick-firing disposition. But unless a man is utterly and besottedly in love, he may discover before the fatal words are said whether he is about to domesticate this type of firearm.

Let him observe, when he calls, if the family flinches when she asks a question. Do their words tumble over each other in answering her? Has her voice a way of taking on a razor edge if you don't agree with her?

She may out-Hollywood Hollywood in the matter of beauty, but remember she's loaded and the least touch will send her off. She is seldom witty, clever or amusing this hair-trigger girl. If she had those desirable qualities, she'd know her line is fatal.

If you're picking out a husband or wife, the first thing to be considered is a good disposition. Pick the good-natured, even-tempered life-partner, and leave the high-strung creature to someone else.

PROXY BRIDE RECANTS

FREMANTLE, Australia — (U.P.) —A 25-year-old Italian bride married by proxy to a local 29-year-old fisherman created a serious rift in the marriage-by-proxy system, when upon her arrival here and a look at her husband, she refused to accept him. They are legally married and must remain so unless annulment is granted.

Leo Slezak Tells About Foods

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Recently we had the opportunity to meet the man our mothers admired so many years ago, one of the favorites of the golden age of song when Caruso ruled at the Metropolitan Opera House. We refer, of course, to Leo Slezak, the giant Czech tenor, and we don't believe that he could have been more charming, more gallant, than he is today, for all his 65 years.

Leo Slezak recently journeyed from Prague to New York for the purpose of celebrating his birthday with his son, Walter, of Hollywood fame. Papa Slezak is forced to diet for 364 days of the year, but on his birthday all restrictions are forgotten. This year he had the nicest birthday ever, revisiting the scenes of his triumphs after a 25-year absence—and drawing up his own menu for his birthday feast.

Bohemian Dishes.

The table was heaped with luscious eatables, most of them rich Bohemian dishes. After sampling some of them we can understand why Papa Slezak has to diet. We asked for recipes and it was the old tenor who wrote them out for us.

If you want to forget diets and such, then potato noodles is your dish. Five large potatoes, two eggs, one cup cracker crumbs, three tablespoons butter and a pinch of salt will serve six. Boil potatoes in salt water. Mash them thoroughly with a fork while still hot. Let them cook. Add butter, flour and eggs, and work into stiff paste on board. Roll into shape of long sausage about one inch thick. Cut this into two-inch lengths and let them stand for about an hour to dry. Boil in salt water for about 12 minutes Drain and pour a dash of cold water over them so that they do not stick together. Place in a shallow pan (like a pie dish). Take cracker crumbs, brown in butter, sprinkle over noodles and place them in oven to heat thoroughly. And absorb the cracker crumbs. Sprinkle with sugar and serve very hot.

Prune Jelly Pockets.

Prune jelly pockets are Leo Slezak's present to himself each birthday, a present which his son shared this year. Five large potatoes, one egg yolk, prune jelly and chopped walnuts to taste, will make six portions. Boil potatoes in salted water and mash thoroughly. Allow to cool, add butter, eggs, flour and work into stiff paste on well-floured board. Roll out dough and cut in three-inch squares. Place in center of each a dab of prune jelly that has been mixed with chopped walnuts. Fold into crescent shape, using egg yolk to make edges stick. Be sure they are well sealed. Drop crescents into boiling water and cook for five minutes. Drain and dry thoroughly. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs that have been browned in butter. Dust with powdered sugar.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"'As deep as a well, as sound as a church,'" she quoted softly. "I opened her windows, saw that she had sufficient covers and came away, all without her moving a muscle. She's safe until morning. Now, what's on your mind?"

"Plenty," I told her, smiling a little grimly. "Are you game for what Mrs. Underwood calls some 'plain and fancy snooping' during what is left of the night?"

Fun For Nurse.

"I can think of no better fun," she said with warming quickness. "Just what do you want me to do?"

"First of all to tell me something," I said quickly. "Have you noticed any electricians working on this floor in the last day or two?"

"I am positive there has been none," she returned, her face attentively turned toward me. "Why?"

I told her briefly of the excuse the night clerk had made for not giving Bill and Hank a room upon the floor with us.

"I lot of hooey, if you ask me," she said impatiently. "He was just stalling. There hasn't been a sound out of those rooms, except when the housekeeper goes in once a day. I suppose, to see if everything is all right. But—"

She stopped and looked at me with suddenly widened eyes.

"There has been one thing out of the ordinary," she said. "You know I've been occupying your room while you were away."

Yes, yes," I said impatiently as she hesitated.

Noticed Light.

"Well! Last night I noticed that there was a light other than mine reflected against the wall outside. I rose and went to the window and looked out, but though I moved carefully, the light, wherever it was, went out, even as I leaned out the window. I could not say on oath that it came from the empty suite next to your bedroom, but I am pretty sure it did. And once I was sure I heard a movement inside that room. But it was not repeated and I thought perhaps my imagination was working overtime."

"I'm ready to wager that it wasn't," I told her. "And what you have told me makes me all the more anxious to begin our espionage."

"I would better change into something dark" she said looking down at the uniform which she had donned when she heard the visitors arrive.

"Yes. I think so."

When she came back, after a swift change, I put some quick questions to her.

Access to Window?

"Mary's opened windows —is there any access to them? I don't believe I have noticed."

"You'd have remembered if you had," she said with pointed allusion to my good memory. "But the only way anything could get up there would be on a fireman's scaling ladder, or webbed feet that could scale a blank wall. There isn't even a balustrade, and the fire escape is off these windows in here."

"Then," I said, "before we go any further, suppose you lock Mary's door from this side, while I lock all the other windows in our suite and your room."

"I'll help you," she said, going to Mary's door on the word, locking it, and then taking alternate windows with me.

"There!" she said, when the last window, hers, had been locked, and we were standing in the middle of her room. "What next?"

"A big armchair near your outer door," I replied, "not near enough to be in the way of opening the door, but so that anyone standing behind it can touch its occupant without moving from her position."

"It is already done," she said, moving a chair across the thick carpet without a sound. "Next?"

"All lights out, get your small flashlight and come back to the door. I have mine in my hand."

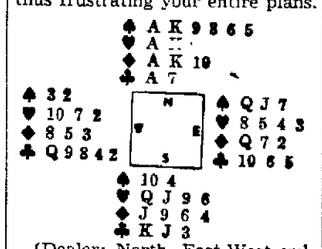
BEWARE CHEAP TRICKS

BEFORE YOU DECIDE to take a trick with some low card, take a good look at the entry situation. Perhaps it will then become manifest that the cheap trick is really expensive. It may result in blocking communication between one hand and the opposite holding, thus frustrating your entire plans.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

North's original bid on this deal was 2-Spades, to which South responded with 2-No Trump. After 3-Spades by North and 3-No Trump by South, North jumped to 5-No Trump, which South took to 6-No Trump.

When the club 4 was led by West, South took the trick with the J and from that moment on his contract was doomed. He failed to realize that spades had to be run to make the contract and that one sure trick had to be lost there so that every other trick had to be won.

The club A should have been played to the first trick and even though that meant forfeiting one club trick, the play provided an entry to the South hand to cash two good hearts, which with the two in dummy, five spade tricks, two diamonds and two clubs would have been more than sufficient to make his small slam.

Being kept in the dummy with the play of the 7 on the first trick, declarer was obliged to lose one diamond in addition to one spade.

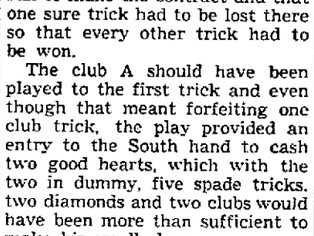
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the proper bidding on this deal?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Oct. 13.

Much progress and satisfaction are ready from this day's sidereal operations, with much activity and keen interest in both old and new projects. There may be very lucrative new contracts or agreements, in which initiative, acumen or shrewdness will gain objectives, especially with "big business" associates.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of whirling activity. Old as well as new matters are under high impetus and should bring to bear much talent, sagacity and shrewdness in handling perplexing situations leading toward desired objectives.

A child born on this day may be highly intellectual, alert, keen and of impressive personality, which will attract the co-operation of elders and those in high standing.

Some Defects Can Be Beauty Assets

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Helen Hayes is five feet tall, and look where she's got. She is a charming woman, a distinguished actress. Yet many a half portion of a girl has made herself unhappy because of her size, which has nothing to do with a successful, contented lot. She can wear cute duds, be playful and natural, doesn't have to stand on her dignity as does the show girl type who won't dance unless she can find a partner as tall as she is.

* * *

A large or long nose might worry some women, others might play it up. Fannie Brice's nose didn't keep her from a successful stage career. Katharine Cornell and Joan Crawford use so wide a film or rouge on their lips that their mouth portals are almost squared at the ends. This design suits both of them.

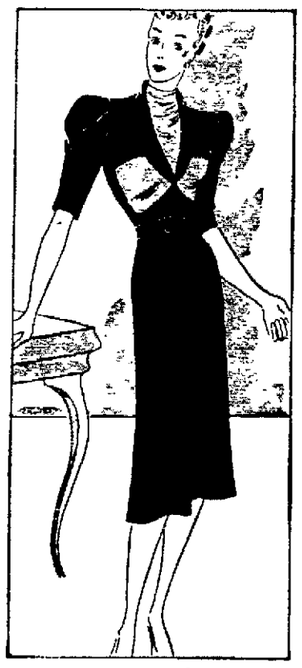
* * *

If a woman is naturally pale she is wise to dramatize pallor. A touch of blue on the eyelide, a not too colorful tint on the lips and she has compelling charm.

There are many beauty defects that don't exist; they're just in the eye. A girl will take a strong mirror to the light, every flaw in the complexion will be magnified. She'll sob and grieve and make herself wretched, not stopping to think that one sees her all of a piece-pose, posture, complexion, eyes, hair. It is the complete composition that counts.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE



Stunning Daytime Frock.

The papers are beginning to carry stories about Consuelo and her new show. She is such a darling, for when the reporters came to see her she had her manager give them the pictures I had taken of her and insisted that I be given picture credit. Well, today one of the biggest papers carried two of the pictures I took of her and gave me a credit line. Now I'm on a par with my mother, and she won't be able to crow over her pictures being published any more.

It is the easiest thing in the world to take good pictures of Consuelo. She is what the picture people call photogenic; that is, she photographs perfectly from any angle, and in any lighting. I am going to take some more pictures of her when the clothes for her new show are finished.

The work rooms are just humming with activity these days, and we expect that the first costumes for it, the three dresses for the first act, will be finished at the end of the week. Consuelo is busy with rehearsals and hasn't much time for two of her admirers who are in town. The columnists are always conjecturing about her romances and engaging her to this man or that. But I am perfectly sure that Consuelo is still fancy free. She is frankness itself, and as she often has said, there would be no reason for concealing her affection for any man, for there is nothing to be ashamed of in true love. But, at the same time, she has no intention of letting himself be the object of any press agent's pipe-dreams.

Not Like Consuelo.

I wish all actresses were like that. One day quite a well-known star was in the shop. About 10 minutes after she left, she called up to say that she had lost a diamond and ruby-studded platinum and gold cigaret case in our place. Well, you can just imagine the searching that went on. She kept calling back and then started accusing the girls who waited on her of having taken the case. Well, it never was found. She insisten that Madame give her the price of the case, but, of course, Madame refused. Later on it came out that this actress had staged several press stunts, and I'm sure that this was one, for her picture with the case appeared in all the papers. No wonder the whole theatrical profession adores Consuelo.

Well, the town continues to favor purple in all its beautiful shades for day and evening wear, for elaborate clothes and for casual or practical frocks. Deep purple is the hue of this neat rabbit's hair, woolen daytime frock that is so simple yet so smart with its patch pockets and draped vestee of lavender velvet. A rolled collar and half-length sleeves complete the story. The back is perfectly plain. It's a practical frock because the pockets and vestee are removable, allowing for individual tastes and changes.

SENIOR HIGH TO STAGE CARNIVAL ON HOMECOMING

Students Vote for Program as Substitute for Annual 'Alums Day' Parade.

"Alums Day" or Homecoming Day, which has been observed at Senior high school for the past three years with a parade through the downtown business section, will be replaced this fall with an all-day carnival at the schooi building, it was announced today.

Students themselves voted out the "Alums Day" parade in favor of a carnival in an election held to determine the type of Homecoming Day program they wanted.

The election followed talks over the school radio by two students, Marjorie Mahon and Harold Duda. Miss Mahon spoke in favor of the parade and Duda urged the carnival. Results of the election were: For the carnival 957, and for the parade 406.

Sponsored By Council.

The celebration will be sponsored by the Student Representative council. The event will begin with an assembly program in the afternoon and conclude with a costume dance and concessions in the evening.

The Student council will offer a prize to the student submitting the best name for the event. No date has been set for the carnival but it will be held on a Friday preceding one of the fottball games remaining on the school's schedule.

Arrangements will be made under the supervision of a committee named by Principal Jesse Beer. The committee includes Zane Wilson, chairman, J. Merton Holcombe, Miss Pearl Danbeck, Miss Ruth Dunham, H. D. Bishop, Miss Leota Hunter and H. R. Kinger of the school faculty, and Raymond Bush, Joan Locke, and Marjorie Mahorr of the Student Representative Council.

SUES AUTOIST

Cincinnati Man, Injured Here, Asks $10,661 Damages.

A suit for $10,661 damages had been filed in Richland county common pleas court today by Robert E. Heekin, jr., Cincinnati, who was injured last April 1 when his car turned over on Lexington avenue at the city limits.

Heekin named Robert Schumacher, Mansfield, defendant in the action, and contends that Schumacher drove across the highway in front of him, causing him to lose control of his automobile when he attempted to avoid a collision.

Heekin suffered a brain concussion and body injuries. His action covers damages to his automobile, hospital and doctor bills and personal injuries.

Heekin is represented by Attys. Henkel and Gongwer.

RECEIPTS DROP

Revenue of Muny Court Last Month $300 Under August.

Municipal court receipts totaling $1,215.59 for September were more than $300 below the revenue collected for August, the monthly report of collections prepared by Miss Isabel Gertsmeyer, deputy clerk, showed today.

The revenue last month were less than half the total amount collected during the corresponding period last year when an all-time record collection of $2,528 was set by the court.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $992.89, while $222.70 will be distributed to the state, county and law library. The city's share was derived from $832.60 in fines, costs and forfeitures in criminal cases and $160.59 collected as costs in civil cases.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

SET FOR NOV. 1

Personal Tax Collections for Last Half Year Nears.

The last county tax collection this year will begin Nov. 1 when the period for payment of general and classified personal taxes opens, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today.

With the greater part of the personal levies paid during the first-half collection last spring, receipts during the final period are expected to total less than $100,000, county officials said.

Most of the amount still due is owed by business and industrial firms, since most of the individual property owners who pay only a small personal levy, paid the entire amount during the first half of the year, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

Statements will be mailed to property holders who still owe personal tax and returns may be sent by mail, the auditor explained.

Students Launch Drive to Enlist Parents In P. T. A.

Students at John Simpson Junior high school yesterday opened their annual drive to enlist their parents as members of the school's Parent-Teacher association.

The students set a goal of 200 members.

Lee Adams has been appointed chairman of the campaign, assisted by 34 captains, representing each home room at the school. A prize will be awarded to the class having the largest percentage of parents enroll as members of the association, and each room will have a chart listing the name of each parent enrolling, and the name of the student obtaining the membership.

Reports of the drive will be given at the October meeting of the association next Tuesday evening, closing day of the campaign. The student campaign is under the general supervision of J. J. Thoms of the school faculty.

Appointment of H. M. Butzloff as sales manager of the household refrigeration department of Westinghouse was announced today by R. C. Cosgrove, manager of the department. Cosgrove who was formerly sales manager, recently was named manager of this division.

The new sales manager was born in Browns, Iowa, and was graduated from Cornell college, Iowa. He will make his home at 411 Scholl road.

At the same time Cosgrove announced the appointment of two refrigeration regional supervisors. H. F. MacGrath, employed in the household refrigeration department for the past year was named eastern regional supervisor, and George Meilinger was appointed western regional supervisor.

THEATER

THERE is pathos in the announcement that Lionel Barrymore has given up the role of Scrooge in the forthcoming production of Dickens' "Christmas Carol". For years the oldest of the Barrymore brothers has wanted to play the character and has tried many times to sell the idea to his producers. But not until this year was it decided to film the Christmas classic. But it was too late then for Lionel to realize his dream. He is in ill health and probably will do little work on the screen in the future. He has asked that Reginald Owen take the part. A youngster named Terry Kilburn will play Tiny Tim.

"Broadway Musketeers."

A dramatic story, interwoven with comedy and thrills, is told in "Broadway Musketeers", opening tomorrow at the Ohio. Three little girls who grow up in an orphanage meet years later on Broadway and again their destinies are strangely entwined with tragedy for one. Margaret Lindsay, Ann Sheridan and Marie Wilson are the Musketeers, with John Litel in the leading male role.

"King of Alcatraz."

Probably suggested by a recent tragedy off the Pacific coast when gangsters took over a pleasure boat, is the theme of "King of Alcatraz" in which Public Enemy No. 1 escapes from the federal prison and stows away aboard a coastwise ship, together with a gang of his badmen. Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan, Robert Preston and J. Carrol Naish head the cast. Booked for Madison, Thursday.

"Scarface" Re-issued.

An interesting re-issue which the Park theater presents Thursday and the remainder of the week is "Scarface" one of the earlier and more thrilling gangster pictures. It was in this second Paul Muni starring picture that the great character actor made his first bid for fame. With him were Ann Dvorak, Karen Morley, Boris Karloff and George Raft. A second feature will be "The Lady In Scarlet".

Joneses In Jam.

Continuing through Thursday at the Majestic is the double-feature bill with Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea in "Woman Chases Man", a romantic comedy, and "Safety In Numbers", another of the popular Jones Family stories, in which all of the Joneses manage to get into a jam at the same time.
